LIMITED MOVE HELPS

Allied Action Seen as Boost To Cementing of Many French Factions.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union's unqualified recognition of the French Committee of National Liberation today overshadowed the limited recognition granted by the United States Great Britain and Canada

The Russian action, recognizing the committee as "representative of the state interests of the French republic" and pledging to exchange plenipotentiary representatives, was not a surprise.

Soviet officials for sometime have been pressing for Allied recognition of the French committee, jointly headed by Gen Charles DeGaulle and Gen Henri Honore Giraud. The Russians had recognized DeGaulle's Fighting French organization and it had been anticipated that they would go farther than the western Allies, which they did.

American and British displeasure at the activities of DeGaulle, who has become the dominant personality in the French committee, was behind the qualifications. The statements make it plain that efforts to obtain DeGaulle's cooperation along the lines desired by American and British leaders have not been successful and that more complete recognition will be withheld until a greater degree of unity is achieved.

The success of such a policy will not be determined immediately. The qualifications will make it possible to withdraw or nullify recognition from the French com-

FDR ACCEPTS?

Welles Reports President OK's Resignation.

, WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Sumner Welles has informed ambassadors of foreign countries here that President Roosevelt has accepted his resignation as undersecretary of state, it was learned today.

Welles, now at Bar Harbor, Me., conveyed the news of his resignation—yet to be confirmed officially—in lengthy, personal letters to the various members of the diplomatic corps with whom he had been associated during his long career in the state department.

Reports that Welles had submitted his resignation to the president have been circulating here for days, but the letters were the first revelation that the resignation had been accepted.

Cleveland Plans To Take Welcome Off Door For Migrants.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The Cleveland area manpower commission met today to consider fixing a date for closing the door to any more in-migration workers into Cuyahoga county

Officials pointed out that Cleveland's housing shortage was the principal reason for consideration of the action. They also asserted that the rate of turnover and absenteeism among migrant workers is many times what it is among established residents.

LIEUT. ROBERT D. SWANK

RICHLAND PILOT ON MISSING LIST

Lieut. R. D. Swank, Bellville, Was In Action Over Germany, Parents Informed.

The increasing tempo of the Allied air war against Germany today cost the Allies another Richland county flier the third to be reported missing in action over Europe in the past three weeks.

A bomber pilot, Lieut. Robert D. Swank, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Swank of Bellville, has been missing since Aug. 12 over Gisenkirchen, Germany, his parents have been informed by the war department.

Lieuts. James T. Watson, navigator aboard a Flying Fortress, and Levan A. Miller, pilot of a medium bomber, were reported missing early this month. Both are Mansfielders.

Lieut Swank has been in England since early in June He enlisted in the air force in February, 1942 and was commissioned March 10.

19 Nazis Escape Prison Camp In Canada, 9 Caught

KINGSTON Ont. - (AP) - Nineteen German prisoners escaped from the Fort Henry prison camp last night, but nine had been recaptured by 9 a. m today and the remainder were hunted widely

Four were found last night and five more were captured this morning, all in Kingston or nearby.

Headquarters said the men escaped between 9 and 9:30 p m

A routine check was being made of the prisoners when a report came through from police that a man believed to be an escaped prisoner had been apprehended at Dead Man's Bay, a mile and one-half from the camp.

The check was quickly completed and it was discovered 19 were missing.

The search was being continued over a wide area today.

FOUND DEAD, HAD $50,000

Woman's Body Discovered In North Baltimore Home.

BOWLING GREEN - (INS) — A woman who had not been seen for some time had been found dead today of natural causes in her home by Mayor Ernest Walters of nearby North Baltimore.

She is Mrs Nellie Rockwell, 67. Acting Coroner Hal Whittacre said that she had been dead 15 days. Receipts found showed she was the widow of Charles Rockwell, former president of the North Baltimore First National bank, and had $50,000 bonds in the bank, investigating officers said

Mayor Walters led a party of four up a ladder to the second story window of Mrs. Rockwell's home seeking the cause of her absence.

OPA Announces $147,000 Collected in Fines.

CLEVELAND - (U.P.) — Court actions against ration violators in the five-state area including Ohio and West Virginia have collected $147,135 in fines since February, 1942, the regional office of price administration reported today.

Chief Attorney James C. Gruener in charge of OPA enforcement said 226 criminal actions were filed, of which 118 led to convictions.

DECLARES CITY LAX IN PRICE CONTROL HELP

Beelman Says Mansfielders Complain But Refuse To Aid Enforcement.

Regional OPA Office Hits at 'Don't Want To Be Bothered' Attitude of Some.

Reluctance of shoppers in the Mansfield area to report price ceiling violations is making it difficult to enforce OPA ceilings in this area and threatens a breakdown in the enforcement system, C C Beelman, chairman of the Richland county ration board, said today.

Beelman appealed to buyers who see obvious violations to report them immediately to the ration board, opening the way for an investigation.

"If the Mansfield public would cooperate with us and report violations, we would be better able to enforce the price control regulations," he said. "No funds are allocated for investigators to make purchases for evidence, and we have to depend upon the public to report violations."

Beelman said his board frequently gets calls from shoppers who report alleged violations, but some of the persons who call refuse to give their names In a few cases Mansfielders have helped the board by bringing purchase receipts to the office to show how much they paid for articles the board chairman added

In most of the cases reported so far, it was proved that the dealer misinterpreted price regulations, and adjustments have been made so that it was not necessary to take action, Beelman said.

The Richland county chairman's complaint of public reluctance to report alleged OPA violations is one of many that have reached the regional OPA office in Cleveland.

James C. Gruener regional chief attorney, said "Many persons loudly decry the lack of enforcement action, yet steadfastly refuse to Pilotless Nazi Plane Crashes on Danish Island.

STOCKHOLM (AP) The newspaper Aftonbladet reported today in a dispatch from Malmoe that a pilotless German plane had crashed on the Danish island of Bornholm in the Baltic sea and said there were indications that the craft was radio-controlled

Investigators, the dispatch said, could find no place in the plane for a pilot.

The dispatch caused immediate speculation here as to whether the plane might be one of the secret weapons about which the Germans have been boasting

Bornholm is located about 25 miles off the southernmost tip of Sweden

Army Sends Commander to Direct Flight Training at City Airport

50 to 100 Fliers To Be Stationed In Barracks

The U S. army air force is moving into Mansfield's municipal airport.

Within the next two weeks enlisted reserves enrolled in the War Training service program at the port will have been called to active duty and the air force will begin to send in enlisted personnel for flight training

Already on the job is the new commanding officer, Capt. Ward Harshbarger, jr., former St. Albans, W. Va., high school football coach, who was transferred here from Hendrick Field, Sebring, Fla.

Capt. Harshbarger said the first contingent of 50 army fliers is expected to arrive the early part of September with 100 of the men ultimately to be stationed here. They will be billeted at G B U park which has served as barracks for the fliers training here under the WTS program conducted by the Harrington Air Service.

The commanding officer said he also expected several commissioned officers to be sent here to make up the executive staff.

The fliers will include men who have already had pre-flight and primary flight training. They will be given instruction in cross-country flying during their training period here after which they will be sent to Randolph Field, Tex., for the final phase of instruction

The men will be given instruction by the Harrington Air Service in training planes which have been assigned here by the government and which have been used by the enlisted reserves

Capt. Harshbarger is married and has two daughters.

Mansfielders Carry Out Big Roles In Air, Sea Battles

Two Mansfield fliers have played a prominent part in dealing decisive blows to the enemy, both the Nazis and Japs

Associated Press dispatches revealed them to be Lieut (jg.) Robert L Straub son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Straub, 90 Rhymer avenue, a navy fighter pilot, and Second Lieut Thomas K Gerhart, son of Mr and Mrs Clarence Gerhart 256 East Second street, bombardier aboard one of the anti-submarine command's B-21 Liberators

Straub's parents were advised earlier this week that their son was enroute home Today a delayed dispatch from the southwest Pacific told about the impressive record the fighter group, of which he is a member, has scored against the Japs

His squadron, nicknamed the "Blackjack," was born as an organization May 15, and fought its first air battle on June 30, the dispatch said. That was the day U. S. forces scored an overwhelming victory over the Japs at the outset of the New Georgia invasion.

Of the 103 Jap planes shot down in that engagement the "Blackjack" squadron downed 32 at the cost of two pilots The squadron built its score in one month to a total of 60 Nine of the fliers were reported missing in action.

Lieut Straub was credited with two "probables" because he couldn't see the enemy ships crash.

SAVING PENNIES?

Then Haul Them Out So Banks Can Ease Shortage.

The Federal Reserve bank of Cleveland, which usually reckons its monetary affairs in millions of dollars is now in a state of financial embarrassment all because of "penny pinchers"

Mansfield and other Ohioans who are stowing away pennies in piggy banks, sugar bowls, and glass jars are causing a penny shortage which threatens to become serious in this area unless they release the coins for circulation.

The shortage has already been felt by Mansfield banks who use all the pennies supplied them by the Federal Reserve bank and then have to use a system of juggling to keep them distributed evenly. President Matthew J. Fleming said the Federal Reserve bank had been sending out 2,500,000 pennies a week and getting back only about 200,000 pennies a week adding, "It's a mystery where they all go"

WOMAN WEDS SEVEN SOLDIERS

Married Two In Day But Went With Another.

COLUMBUS (INS) — A 34-year old Indianapolis woman who told Capt Robert Wynn, head of the police vice squad, that she had married about seven soldiers, was held in the city prison today awaiting removal to Phoenix, Ariz., where she is wanted on the charge of feloniously obtaining a government soldier's allowance check for $50.

The woman who gave her name as Vivian Eggers pleaded guilty to the charge before U S Commissioner Robert Newlon.

"She said she had 'married' two soldiers in one day in Arizona," Wynn related. Queried about which soldier she went with on her wedding day, she replied that she did not go with either, that she "went with another."

STEALS SAFE

Thief Gets Away With $5,000 From Cleveland Cafe.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — A 500-pound safe containing $5,000 in currency was stolen from the back room of a Scranton road tavern early today while its owner, his wife and 20 customers were in the front room, police reported.

Jacob Eichmuller, 44, the proprietor, said the theft occurred during a 10-minute period between his trips to the safe to obtain money to cash customers' checks.

MAPS MEETING ON PAY BOOST

Council Expected To Meet City Employes Next Week on Wage Request.

City employes' request for more pay is expected to come before a council committee again next week at a session which will be open to the employes' representatives, Councilman C. N. Shultz said today.

As chairman of a special council committee on salaries, Shultz said he would confer with Fire Capt. Frank R. Stahl, the public workers' chairman, within a day or two in an attempt to arrange a meeting date that would be satisfactory to Stahl's committee and council.

"The employes' committee asked us to meet with them, so we'll leave it up to them to tell us what they have in mind this time," Shultz said.

He said the request for wage increases would be studied in a council committee session before anything is offered to council for action.

'Fag' Price Boost Seen In Growers Increased Demand

WASHINGTON - (INS) Possibility that American smokers may have to pay more for their cigarets was seen today in demands of the tobacco growers for a four-cent increase in the price ceiling of flue-cured tobacco.

Although admitting that action on the price ceiling of cigarets also is "in the mill," OPA spokesmen declined to reveal whether the adjustment would be an increase in the retail price.

Growers in the principal tobacco-raising states of the southeast, meanwhile, have demanded that OPA boost the price ceiling on graded and tied flue-cured tobacco from 41 cents a pound to 45 cents.

This would mean, one grower explained at a meeting with OPA officials in Washington, that it would cost the manufacturers about two-tenths of a cent more to produce a package of cigarets.

Princess Many Trails Reaches New Zealand On Latest Tour

(By International News Service)

AUCKLAND, New Zealand— Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, globe-girdling wife of the president, arrived today in Auckland on a surprise visit for a tour of American hospitals and military camps in New Zealand.

The journey to New Zealand marked the second time since the outbreak of war that the wife of the American chief executive has traveled overseas. Previously she had been to London where she was the guest of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Mrs. Roosevelt brought greetings from the president who sent word that he was disappointed that he was unable to come himself

The official welcome to the American first lady was extended by Governor-General Sir Cyril Newell and a party of high New Zealand officials and American and New Zealand military officials.

In the welcoming party was Walter Nash, former New Zealand minister to Washington, and Mrs. Nash. The ceremonies were broadcast throughout the dominion.

Denmark Riots Grow, Italians Rush to Rome

Russians Threaten Two Major Outposts On Dnieper Line; U. S. Bombers Smash At Southern Italy; Swedes Charge Nazis Sink Two of Their Ships.

(By Associated Press)

Russia's armies struck deeper into the heart of the Ukraine toward battle lines of 1941 today, while in western Europe dispatches told of mounting revolt in Nazi-occupied Denmark and a civilian "march on Rome" in beleaguered Italy.

Soviet headquarters announced that Russian troops driving on beyond Kharkov had thrown the Germans back three and one-half miles farther west in an offensive toward the Nazis' Dnieper river defenses, and also sent a column racing south in a new flanking maneuver.

Field reports indicated that the Red armies were threatening two major outposts of the Dnieper line—the key rail junction at Lozovaya, only 40 miles from Dnieperopetrovsk, and Poltava 75 miles from the river.

One Soviet column had already by-passed Poltava to the north on a bee-line drive toward Kiev, the Ukraine capital 170 miles away.

Dispatches from Stockholm said Denmark's "people's revolt" against German occupation authorities reached new heights of bitterness in the wake of a riot in the Raadhuspladsen in the center of Copenhagen yesterday.

German soldiers and Danish police broke up the demonstration the second in 24 hours and arrested 120 persons An undetermined number of persons were injured.

Eyewitnesses of the first riot Wednesday night said German soldiers drove a tank into crowded market place and fired a volley of shots to break up the demonstration.

Anti-Nazi sabotage, general strikes and clashes between Danes and German soldiers were reported erupting throughout Denmark, and Danish government leaders were said to have told the Germans they would make no further concessions. One report said that the Germans, already short on manpower, were hesitating to take over full control, but that Gen Hermann Von Hannecken commander of the Nazi occupation army, would institute some form of military rule to quell further outbreaks.

While American bombers smashed anew at southern Italy, Madrid dispatches said that thousands upon thousands of Italians were moving into Rome from the provinces Since the Allies landed in Sicily, July 10, Rome's population has swollen by more than 500,000 and the number is increasing daily.

So far the march on the capital has been peaceful... according to travelers arriving in Madrid from Italy, but Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio was said to fear that some of the newcomers might stage new peace demonstrations or plot against the government.

Parks, public squares and plazas in Rome were described as filled nightly with persons unable to obtain lodgings

PLANS: Mountbatten Confers Today With Army Staff Chief

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Lord Louis Mountbatten will meet General George C. Marshall, U. S army chief of staff, today to end a whirlwind series of conferences with American military and naval leaders on plans for the drive against Japan from India.

One subject Mountbatten and Marshall are expected to discuss is the composition of Mountbatten's staff It was understood that he already has obtained an important American U. S. army officer for his deputy chief of staff.

His chief of staff undoubtedly will be a Britisher. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower picked an American for his chief of staff and a British general for his deputy.

Mountbatten's primary mission will be to push the Japanese out of Burma so that supply routes to China can be reopened. But it was expected that his operations will be coordinated with those in the southwest Pacific under American command.

While much has been done in the way of planning and getting supplies to India for the Burma campaign observers here cautioned against expectations that Mountbatten's appointment as supreme command of Allied forces in the southeast Asia area would be translated into sudden action in Burma.

Mountbatten, it was understood, had little advance warning of his selection, and it was considered likely that after his conferences here he would confer with military leaders in London and Chungking.

He may not announce the composition of his command until he arrives in India But it still was considered a good bet here that Maj Gen George E. Stratemeyer, recently named commander of U. S. air forces in the India China-Burma theater, would become Mountbatten's air commander.

Other key officers in the general area probably will be retained. One of these, Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell, commander of all U. S. forces in the India-China-Burma area, will remain "in a very important capacity," Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox told reporters late yesterday.

Mountbatten already has conferred with Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, and the latter's chief advisers on strategic and supply planning He also met briefly with Knox

His conference with King lasted almost two hours. Also present were Rear Admiral Charles M. Cooke, jr., assistant chief of staff to King on plans, and Rear Ad-

ACTION: Biggest Pacific Air Force Rips Japs at Hansa Bay

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—Allied heavy and medium bombers, flying in greater force than ever before in the southwest Pacific, crashed 10 tons of bombs on Salamaua's supply base at Hansa Bay New Guinea Thursday, Allied headquarters announced today.

Lt. Gen. George C Kenney's Fifth airforce sent nearly 100 Liberators, Flying Fortresses and Mitchells, escorted by fighters into the attack from low altitude and succeeded in sinking a freighter, wrecking 15 barges, exploding ammunition dumps and destroying ground installations.

While American and Australian ground forces, almost at the edge of Salamaua's airdrome, tightened their pressure on the Japanese, the same bristling bomber formations which devastated Wewak in consecutive raids last week turned their attention to the Hansa bay area

CHAPTER VI

"If you brought him back it would still be the word of two men against five, even if he had the courage to tell the truth."

"That might tilt the scale far enough to get us a reprieve for Cle while we tried to dig up more evidence."

"You ought not to go alone."

"This is no job for a posse. It's outside the law. Cle has been convicted. The case is closed. I can bring Todd back as well as three-four of the boys. There's no point in others getting into a jam."

"I think you are going to get into trouble."

"I can handle this; just let me alone," he replied.

Willie May flushed. Cowhands didn't talk to her like that—not to Willie May Broderick. Why should Bob Lee—and yet oddly enough she was not displeased. To cover her confusion, she turned and strode quickly into the house.

Bob Lee rode off ruefully. At Four Corners he stopped to see Doctor Taylor, hoping to learn Todd's destination.

"He didn't know himself where he was going," the doctor explained. "One of those shilly-shally fellows who just float around. He wants to get a farm."

"Didn't he give you any line on his route?" Lee asked.

"He did say he was going to cross into the Creek Nation. I heard him mention Wewoka, but likely as not he changed his mind. What you want with him anyhow?"

Bob told him. Doctor Taylor did not think much of the plan.

"If you bring him back like as not the Hickorys will rub you both out," he snorted. "Better not fool around and make bad worse. Hightower is done for."

"It's not too late as long as Cle is still alive," Bob replied.

He camped that night on Caney Boggy and next day cut through the Shawnee Hills to the Canadian. On the morning of the third day he reached Wewoka. At a trading post he heard news of the man he wanted. A lounger remembered the scarecrow team, the white mare and the mule.

"Sure enough," the trader agreed. "He worked on Tinker's fences for two-three days and got enough to buy some grub. He talked about going to Shawnee—or was it Tecumseh?"

Neither the trader or lounger were certain. While the men mulled over the matter two Indian police came in to buy supplies. Bob followed them from the store to the hitch rack where their horses were tied. He asked them. They had not seen Todd or his outfit, but Bob gathered that they were trying to pick up information about cattle rutsling from the ranches along the Canadian and the Little rivers. It was known that the rustlers had runs along which they drive the stock to Kansas, trailing by night and keeping under cover during the day.

It was no new story, except the locality of the raids. The settlers on the Red and the Kiamichi were also harrassed by night riders who lifted bunches of cows and drove them covertly to a market across the line. The Hickorys were said to be leaders of the industry in the south. Whether they operated as far north as the Little river Lee did not know.

Bob crossed the Seminole country and reached Tecumseh about sunset. He stabled his horse before dropping into the Old Trail restaurant. With a hearty dinner under his belt he sauntered down the main street to look over the town.

The stage from Guthrie went past him in a cloud of dust and drew up at the station. Bob watched the passengers descend, a redfaced man with a bottle nose, two cowboys, an overdressed buxom young woman with a too-ready smile, and Hiram Sugg. At sight of Lee, Sugg showed a startled surprise.

"Out of your range, aren't you, Lee?" he asked.

Bob admired the man's force, but there was something about him he did not like. Sugg's friendliness seemed all front. There was no warmth.

"For a guy like me the grass over the hill is always greener," he replied.

"Not up here on business for Broderick then?"

"No, sir. I'm riding the chuck line."

Sugg had no reason to doubt that. Range riders were always drifting from one ranch to another. "Where you heading from here?" he asked.

"Reckon I'll have to toss a dollar to find out, seeing that I'm strictly on the loose."

Sugg hesitated. Apparently he was about to say more, but if so he repressed the impulse. He went into the hotel that was also the stage station.

That suited Bob. Maybe jealousy lay back of his dislike of this man moving so swiftly to a large success. Sugg's actions at Cle's trial gave him a peg on which to hang his resentment. But though Bob did not want to fraternize with him, he was puzzled at the promoter's manner. To Sugg he was small potatoes, and where or when he went could make no difference.

Yet it stuck in Bob's mind that the sight of him lounging against the wall of the station had been a shock to Sugg's complacency. Perhaps the man had guessed what he was doing here.

Bob moved on to the Buffalo Skull corral to check on the hay feed for his mount. The night attendant, a small pinched face man with a weak chin, was there.

He said "Howdy!" and leaned against a post while Bob went in to see whether his mount had been well looked after.

"How you doing, Blaze?" the owner of the animal asked.

The horse pretended to bite his hand, then nuzzled its nose against his shoulder. There was still plenty of hay in the manger.

Before Bob left he put the question he had asked twenty times in the past two days. "Have you seen anything of a stranger around here, a fellow named Todd who has just come in with a covered wagon drawn by a mule and a white mare? He has a wife and one kid, a little boy."

The wrangler's jaw dropped. "W-what you want with him?"

Bob did not answer. He had stopped abruptly in front of a stall, his gaze fastened on a big bay with white stockings.

"Whose horse is that?" he demanded.

"I dunno. My shift started half an hour ago. The horse was here when I came. What you want with Todd?"

Looking at the corral employe and noting the alarm in his washed-out eyes, Bob knew he had found the man he had ridden so far to discover. But the sight of Jake Hickory's bay gelding had changed or at least modified his immediate plans.

"Doc Taylor asked me to say 'Hello!' if I saw him," he said.

The mover showed a flash of temper. "Is he scared he won't get the ten dollars he loaned me?"

"Oh, are you Mr. Todd?" Bob asked mildly. "The Doc never worries about getting paid. He kinda took an interest in your family. Knowing I was drifting this way he asked me if I saw you to find out how you were getting along."

"Doctor Taylor is a fine man all right. I'll pay him if it's the last thing I ever do," Todd assured Lee. "You tell him I've got a job. He'll have his money in a month or so."

"If he was here he would probably tell you to take yore time." Lee changed the subject. "That Indian Hightower, the fellow who killed Sam Hickory, had his trial just before I left the Nation."

"How did it come out?" the wrangler asked wretchedly.

"Found guilty. He'll be shot September 17th."

"My God!" Todd moaned. "He just defended himself."

"That wasn't the way five witnesses told it."

"I was there. I saw him."

"Why weren't you at the trial?"

Todd did not answer. He did not know this man. Already he had talked too much.

"I'll tell you why," Bob continued. "Because of the Hickorys. They put the fear in you—let you know that if you stayed to testify you would never live till the day of the trial."

"I'm no gunman," the mover pleaded miserably. "What could I do? A fellow has to think of his family."

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"'Aye!' Dicky quoted. "'there's the rub!'" I can imagine Olga's reaction to that revelation about the chloroform and the other drugs."

"After all," my father said slowly, "Ruth Hayes had no chance to do more than grasp Olina's arm. As far as the Veritzens know, she only wanted to have the girl come into her room while she counted the money. The discovery you and Dicky made about the bag took place after Olina had left, and even Ruth herself does not know that you found the drugs. And the surmise that she intended to use them on Olina is only just that—a conjecture. We have no proof. So," he concluded, "why excite Olina and alarm her parents unnecessarily?"

I made the mental note, as I was sure both Katharine and Dicky did also, that he had used different verbs to describe the probable reaction on Olina and on her parents of the story of the chloroform. Olina would feel no fear, only the elation of a peril missed. But her mother and her step-father would in all probability suffer agonies of fear, even though the peril had passed by.

"Why, indeed?" Dicky echoed, and Katharine and I nodded silent agreement.

"But," he went on, "they will want to hear, as I am sure you will also, about what happened to Ruth Hayes when she left the hotel with the money, and again after she had come back after her bag and had checked out. Richard, suppose you telephone their apartment and ask them if they can come down here for a little while. We do not wish to have Margaret in evidence in the corridors until she leaves the hotel this afternoon for Meredith's office."

"Glad to," Dicky said, and promptly relayed my father's invitation, which was more like a command.

They Come Promptly.

"They'll be over in five minutes," he reported, and it really was under that when their knock came upon the door.

"I'm really using you to save time," my father said, smiling, when the three—Philip, Olga and Olina—were seated. "I want to bring all of you here up to date about Ruth Hayes, and I haven't time to tell the story twice. So I have asked you to come here and hear it."

Olga flashed a brilliant smile at him.

"What is that phrase I hear so much over here?" she queried. "'We are all ears?' Well, that describes us!"

"I'll try to fill them," my father said, smiling back at her. Then he leaned back in his chair and put his finger tips together.

"I was fortunate in having a number of most efficient trailers on the job," he said, "for as soon as she made the first trip from the Van Sittart with her bag in her hand, she pursued an elusive and tortuous course—most ingenious. They lost her at one point, regained the trail at another, and then, of course, we were fairly sure of her destination—the obscure apartment which Stephen Redfield keeps as a refuge when he has something off the record to stage.

"And," he went on, with patent satisfaction in his success, "there is where we finally trailed her. Redfield was in his hide-out, and from a hole in the ceiling—we have rented the apartment over his—our man saw the Hayes woman transfer the money to Redfield.

"He also," my father went on with a chuckle, "heard the Wilderness Woman stage a demand for a ten per cent commission for getting the money. As you can imagine, that didn't appeal to our handsome actor, and he refused, finally threatening to tell Milner if she persisted in her demand. They had a heated quarrel, and finally Redfield broke down and gave her a thousand which Ruth took, glowering."

"Oh!" Olina exclaimed. "And that is Georges' money they are tossing around like that!"

Won't Do It Long.

"They won't be tossing it around long," my father assured her. "After Ruth left—and she was trailed back to the Van Sittart—Redfield crammed the bills into a gladstone bag and hurried down stairs and into a taxi, trailed, of course by our men. He went directly to a bank, where he evidently has a safety deposit box. But the trailers were able to get a contact which I can use tomorrow, and I shall be able to thwart his plans. He never will be able to withdraw that money, and it eventually will be returned to Georges."

"Oh, I am so glad!" Olina said thankfully, and my father smiled at her.

"We are all glad," he said; "and now, I suppose you would like to hear where Ruth Hayes finally went.

"The Authority on Authorities"

CASH IN ON BAD LUCK

INSTEAD of glaring at your partner for his bad bidding which has put you into a completely illogical contract, you will make out better generally by acting exactly as if his bidding was just right and concentrating on succeeding with the job which he has assigned to you. Many a time you will find that your bad luck in getting into a crazy contract may be turned into good luck if you do your job well enough.

South, who somehow avoided ever showing his five-card club suit, thought he was responding to the Blackwood slam convention when he bid 5-Diamonds and 6-Diamonds. The partners were new to each other, however, and hadn't discussed this point, so North did not know whether South considered the two bids of No Trump as Blackwood's or not. When South saw the dummy, he couldn't figure out just what was North's basis for putting him into the grand slam in diamonds.

West's lead was the heart K. After winning this in the dummy, the declarer built one of the most peculiar plans in many moons, which required an even split of the hostile trumps and also had to find the diamond 9 held by West, as well as spade honors. He won the opener with the heart A, ruffed the hearta 6 with the diamond K, led to the club Q, ruffed the heart 7 with the diamond Q, led the spade 4 to the K and ruffed the heart 8 with the diamond J.

After all that high ruffing, he now had to finesse the trump 8 to avoid loss of a diamond trick. After that worked, he took in the diamond A and 10, then the club A and K. The latter squeezed West. The dummy still had the spade 7 and heart 9, and South the spade A-9 and club 8, which he discarded. West had a choice between setting up the dummy's heart by discarding the Q or throwing a spade from the Q-J and thus enabling South to get two spade tricks, which he did.

Tomorrow's Problem.

What is the right way to play for 4-Hearts on this deal after East ruffs the third club and returns the diamond Q?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Aug. 28.

This day presents openings for aiming at important objectives, with promotions, co-operations and substantial rewards for working in groups, public bodies or community interests, with adequate returns for work well done and skillfully organized. It may have unique or unusual angles, promising in certain quarters spectacular returns. The young also with fine ideals and speculative offerings may enjoy excellent success.

Those whose birthday it is are promised a year of excellent returns for clever ideas. Change and travel may combine to make it a progressive, productive and altogether happy year. The young with bright ideas and unusual ways and means are particularly favored by Lady Luck.

Rosin is used to cover sensitive vires in flying instruments.

Cotton represents 53 per cent of the total crop value in Texas.

TRUMAN GROUP PLANS SECOND ALASKA TRIP

Purpose of Trip Secret, Alcan Highway Cost or Red Bases Likely To Be Checked.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON— Senate Truman committee members will leave on a second trip to Alaska this week-end, it was learned today.

The trip will be made by army plane but the purpose of the trip was kept secret. It was suggested that they may be looking at Alaskan supplies of manpower and material as a possible invasion base against Japan on the theory that such a course now is possible since Japanese withdrawal from Kiska.

It also was reported, without confirmation, that they may stop en route to invesigate the use of army funds to develop northwest Canadian oil fields. Petroleum Administrator for War Harold L. Ickes was said to have protested that the army was "extravagant" in allocating approximately $200,000,000 for such a program.

Another theory was that the committee wished to check into costs and progress in construction of the Alcan highway across Canada connecting the United States with its northwest Pacific possession.

Sen. Harold H. Burton, R., O., expressed interest in the cost of the highway development when he visited Alaska last year as a representative of the Truman committee.

Sen. Mon C. Wallgren, D., Wash., chairman of the Truman committee's subcommittee on aviation, is making this second trip to Alaska, but Burton is not going. In his place will be Sen. Homer Ferguson, R., Mich. They will be accompanied by Rudolph Halley, assistant committee counsel, and possibly Sen. Harley Kilgore, D., W. Va., another member of the aviation subcommittee.

STREET TO OPEN

But Drivers Will Have To Be Cautious on West Second.

Motorists probably will be able to drive over West Second street this week-end without dodging barricades and piles of dirt, but "caution" signs will appear on the street again within a few days as resurfacing operations begin on the stretch from Main to Mulberry streets.

Workmen today were filling excavations made for underground police and fire signal lines, and City Electrician Ernest Adams planned to have the job done by tonight. His crew later will move to the section of Second street east from Main to Franklin avenue.

The street is on the city's resurfacing schedule for the summer, and a new black-top coating will be placed on it within the next two weeks, it was said.

CUBS PICNIC, GET AWARDS

Three awards were made last night when members of Pack 2 and their parents had a picnic supper and meeting at South Park.

Awards were given Robert Clouse, Harry Osburn and Dick Devars. New members of the pack were Doug Brunk, Richard Hoffman and John Wehinger. Cubs graduating to scouts were Robert Clouse and Harry Osburn.

Main feature of the evening was a baseball game with Shelby Pack 1. An Indian Dance and Powwow was also held.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 24 at Central Methodist church. The theme for September will be "Den Fix-up Month." Cubmaster is Howard Stauffer.

OHIO LIQUOR AGAIN INSURED

But Premium For Coverage on Theft Jumps From $8,000 To $20,000.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Bottled liquor in Ohio's retail stores, choice booty for thieves because of the prevailing scarcity, again is covered by burglary insurance but at a $20,000 annual premium, against a previous cost of $8,000, Liquor Director Don Fisher said today.

The National Surety Corporation submitted low bid for the coverage with a three-year premium of $60,000, Fisher said. The Buckeye Union Casualty Company bid $67,500 and the Indemnity Insurance Company of North America, $68,500.

Indemnity Insurance Company cancelled a three-year policy covering open stock burglaries from the monopoly's stores June 24 after it was in force one year.

"We paid the company about $8,000 a year for the policy," Fisher said, "but burglary losses the first year were 257 per cent of the premium, or about $20,000."

Fisher reported liquor store burglaries involved $16,000 worth of stock during the first six months of 1943. Losses to burglars in 1942 totaled $14,676, against $6,709 in 1941, the pre-war year.

FACE COURT

Two Fined, Two Others To Appear on Traffic Counts.

Two Mansfield motorists were fined today in municipal court for traffic violations while two others cited yesterday for speeding, were told to report for hearings next Wednesday.

Pleading guilty in court this morning, Gilbert P. Morrow, 191 Crystal Springs avenue, a driver for the Lombardo Bros. Construction coimpany, was fined $5 and costs for driving with a temporary permit.

Cited for driving with a temporary permit and speeding, Mrs. Lulu M. Nail, Fairview hotel, was fined $5 and costs on the first charge and $10 and costs on the second. She pleaded guilty.

Ordered to appear next Wednesday for hearings in speeding charges were Jack Edward Dewey, Mansfield R. D. 3, and Oliver Franklin Wilson, Crestline R. D. 1. Both were arrested yesterday by police on Park avenue west near the city limits.

PICNIC AT CAMP

Kiwanis Members and Wives Feted at Hidden Hollow.

Fifty Mansfield Kiwanians entertained their wives at a picnic at Friendly House Hidden Hollow camp last night.

Dinner was served after an inspection tour which included one of the dormitory cabins donated by the Kiwanis club. Highlights of the evening were vaudeville acts under the supervision of Camp Director and Mrs. Russell Gimbel and featuring casts chosen from the audience.

Singing around a large bonfire completed the evening's entertainment.

Joy Herbert served as chairman of the social committee.

CHILD INJURED

Two-year-old Sammy Sposito was taken to General hospital at 6:45 p. m. yesterday following a fall at his home, rear of 174 South Main street. The child sustained a cut on the left temple and was reported in good condition when he was released a short time later.

Vote Registration Forms Ready For Men In Service

Forms to be used by Mansfield servicemen in registering to vote in the fall election are now available at the board of election office, Philip Wolfe, clerk of the board, said today.

Men in service who need to register to be able to vote may send for one of the these forms at any time and as soon as the filled out form is returned the soldier or sailor will be sent an application for a ballot.

Wolfe said applications for ballots may be filed at any time. The board will begin to send out ballots Oct. 4 at the close of the registration period and continue to do so through Oct. 28. All ballots must be returned to the election board by noon Oct. 29, Wolfe said.

NOT ASKED TO GO TO QUEBEC, DAVIS ASSERTS

OWI Chief Says He Wasn't Needed There Although Bracken Was Present.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Elmer Davis, boss of the Office of War Information (OWI), today explained he had not attended the Quebec conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill because he didn't think there was need for him there.

Furthermore, he said in answer to a direct question in an interview, he wasn't asked to attend the conference but "I would have gone if I had been asked."

"The conference was discussed here before it opened. I saw no need for me to go there."

Davis said he plans to confer with President Roosevelt when the latter returns to Washington to learn what directives he needs as a result of the decisions reached by the Allied chieftains at the Canadian city.

The question was raised this week — in print — as to why Davis was not at the conference on Allied strategy to which his English counterpart, Brendan Bracken, British minister of information, journeyed from London.

The president was accompanied by his public relations secretary, Stephen Early who, with Bracken, was one of the main information sources at the conference.

George Lyon, chief of Davis' Washington news bureau, and Dana Doten, attached to his Ottawa staff, were in Quebec for OWI which, with the possible exception of the Office of Price Administration (OPA), has been the government's most-criticized agency.

It is no secret that OWI men here have received the repeated criticism aimed at their agency with an increasingly grim attitude and Davis indicated that although OWI has in the past attempted to answer "valid" criticism in the future it will do a "more concentrated" job of answering.

"When criticism is valid we shall reply to it," Davis said. "This does not mean we shall attempt to answer lies about us. We don't have time for that."

PAYS DIVIDEND

SHELBY—The board of directors of the Ohio Seamless Tube company have declared a dividend of 40 cents per common share, payable Sept. 15 to holders of record Sept. 4, and 43¾ cents on the prior preference shares, payable Sept. 20 to holders of record Sept. 10.

RECORD FIGURE

Garbage Collection Brings In $9,300 Total, City Says.

A record collection of city garbage service bills has produced in excess of $9,300 of $11,000 due for the quarter beginning Sept. 1, Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water and garbage departments, said today.

Despite an increased number of garbage service subscribers, the delinquent list will be smaller this time than for any collection in recent months, Lingafelter said. He estimated that service to only 300 subscribers would be discontinued Sept. 1.

More jobs in the city and bigger earnings have combined to boost the number of persons who want the service and their ability to pay, Lingafelter said.

DEAFNESS CONQUERED

By

BELL TELEPHONE LABORATORIES

Complete developments of the first wholly scientific aid for deafness have recently been announced by Bell Telephone Laboratories.

The new units, known as the Ortho-Tronic and the Ortho-Technic Audiphones, have been released through established offices and are proving a sensation everywhere they are shown.

The engineering designs of the new Audiphones are fully patented to prevent imitation and to assure always their high standard of performance to those who are hard of hearing.

Experts state that the new designs, carbon and vacuum tube with air or bone conduction, give better service than has ever been obtained for hearing impairment.

It is emphasized that the Audiphone is easy to use. People who have long been severely hard of hearing report that they hear almost normally with it. A complete scientific hearing test is made with a Western Electric Audiometer in each case to insure proper fitting with the most beneficial results.

Were it not for the gigantic facilities of Bell Telephone Laboratories and the Western Electric company, the new Ortho-Tronic and Ortho-Technic hearing aide could not be attempted at a price within the reach of everyone. Elaborate scientific methods employed to make the new Audiphone seem almost fantastic. The assembly room is air conditioned and all air is filtered magnetically to remove any pieces of metal. Air pressure is kept constant for absolute accuracy.

Those in this vicinity who are hard of hearing will be glad to know that the National Electric Company, 78 N. Walnut Street, Mansfield, has been appointed a dealer for the demonstration and complete service of the Audiphone. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 30TH, THIS SERVICE WILL BE AVAILABLE, AND DURING THE FIRST WEEK, SPECIALLY TRAINED AUDIPHONE TECHNICIANS WILL BE IN ATTENDANCE TO MAKE FREE HEARING TESTS AND TO GIVE FREE HEARING AID DEMONSTRATIONS. The store is open daily until 5:30 o'clock. Evening appointments will be made by your calling 2272-6.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—It is depressing to witness the frightening fumbling of the administration on foreign policy lately and its backward-looking obsession with trying to prove that it has been infallible in the past, and to see President Roosevelt, in a streak of unaccustomed political timidity, throwing into the wastebasket skillful and much needed men like Sumner Welles.

It begins to seem as if the initiative, the courage, the imagination, the readiness to look ahead instead of backward, may come from the Republicans, from some of them, anyway.

Clapper

Certainly there is hope if there is anything typical in the constructive thinking that is voiced now by Clarence Budington Kelland, Republican national committeeman for Arizona, in a specific blueprint laid before the National Republican club at New York this week. He will offer it to the Republican party conference at Mackinac Island two weeks hence.

Somehow I had Bud Kelland down in my books as a rather hard-bitten isolationist. Whether that was fair or not, he says he has been thinking, searching his soul, cleaning his mind of past prejudices, past errors and "of the rubbish of inherited ideas." You don't have to agree with every line of his blueprint to applaud the spirit that is ready to make a fresh start now and to think it through. How much better than that the bitterly personal spirit and narrow-minded, rearvision driving that we are getting out of the state department now with Mr. Roosevelt's personal support!

There isn't space enough here to cover the plan, but you could well read it all to stimulate your thinking. Certainly it contains refreshing vitamins for Republicans to feed on right now, and it wouldn't make a bad diet for some of the people in the administration.

Mr. Kelland suggests that America's program be shaped around the following main points:

1. A trusteeship consisting of Russia, Great Britain, the United States and China to administer territories of our enemies and other nations bankrupted by the war, to preserve order and assist each nation in establishing a form of government of its own choice. With this would go a fact-finding international commission, with the final peace settlement delayed until terms could be deliberately arranged after stable conditions had been restored.

2. Great Britain, China, Russia and America to combine for offensive or defensive joint action against any nation threatening to breach the peace. Such a combination would be so powerful that no nation would dare challenge its jointly stated will.

3. A permanent defensive alliance between the United States and Great Britain. They should act as one in case of attack upon either. This alliance should be permanent and openly declared, as a policy of insurance for both nations.

4. Complete solidarity of the western hemisphere against any threat to any American nation.

5. Underlying all this a strong American navy and air force plus a standing army, ready for war, with heavy offshore defenses in the islands of both oceans. The Pacific must be an American lake, and in the Atlantic we must have defenses at Dakar and Casablanca, in Iceland, Greenland and Bermuda. We have them now and they must be kept.

If Republicans can advance a program that will take some such positive direction as this, they will have served the best interests of the country immeasurably.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—The words "appeaser" and "appeasement" have been used as terms of bitter accusation ever since Mr. Chamberlain of Britain returned from Germany with dust on his knees and tried to make the best of a humiliating situation with a promise of peace in our time. He had his doubts but he also undoubtedly hoped that by sacrificing Czechoslovakia he could turn Hitler around and send him eastward against Russia and that unarmed, untrained and unmilitary Britain could use the time thus gained to prepare for war, if war must be, with the victor. Unable to foresee, as most of the world was, including his own Britain, the fuehrer's fatal hesitation at the channel after the fall of France, the magnificent rally of the British people under the blitz he probably thought that appeasement was the price of deliverance from quick, total and irrelevant disaster. He knew Britain's own terrible weakness and was fearfully aware of the political disorganization and corruption of France and of the apathy of the French people, including their army.

Pegler

Was it wrong of him then, was it unpatriotic, to try to save Britain from a war which he had no reason to think he could win, by abandoning a small continental nation of which his own people had only a map-knowledge, and to hope that the two mighty, ruthless and secretive dictatorships would come to a showdown on the eastern front?

If it comes to that, haven't we all been appeasers?

The war against Britain and France was touched off by an act of appeasement on Russia's part, the treaty which guaranteed Hitler peace as long as he cared to maintain the peace on his eastern front. As Joseph Davies has told us in his book and on the screen Stalin was not ready and wanted more time to work out the preparations which deceived not only our own military dignitaries but Hitler himself. Stalin then, like Chamberlain was willing to sacrifice other nations, and the most democratic nations in Europe, at that, to save his own people if he could but, at least, to gain time when the watchword of the hour was "it's later than you think!"

Chamberlain has been accused of preferring Hitlerism to Bolshevism, although the case for that contention is not convincing. He may only have reckoned that Hitlerism, by reason of the geographical situation and of Britain's seeming helplessness right under the guns, was the more immediate menace. But even if it be granted that he did prefer Hitlerism as the less hideous of the two scourges was he more guilty than those in our country who preferred and still continue to prefer Communism?

Thus far we have seen that Chamberlain sacrificed Czechoslovakia and Stalin sacrificed France, Norway, Denmark, Poland, Holland and Belgium and would have sacrificed Britain and all democracy in Europe sparing only Switzerland as a small museum piece each to gain time for his own people.

Meanwhile and later, we appeased Japan and those who pronounce the word "appeaser" with scorn reproach our government for that. But in doing so, they reproach our whole people because that appeasement, though unpalatable, was not unpopular among us inasmuch as war was the only alternative. Had the issue been put to a vote the appeasement of Japan, with scrap metal and oil in exchange for silk and rubber, and for precious months in which to organize, rearm and revive the martial spirit, would have won.

And now who, but Russia finds it necessary and wise to appease Japan and who but the United States and China keep Japan so heavily engaged as to make it unnecessary thus far, for Russia to reduce her exertions against the enemy in the west?

Appeasement then has been nothing worse than patriotic expediency practiced by men who thought of their own people first.

ASKS REVIEW OF ALL DRAFT DEFERMENTS

Van Zandt, Veteran Leader, Urges Action Before Fathers Are Taken.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Veterans' leaders in congress today demanded a "bedrock" review of all draft deferments as a prerequisite to the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R., Pa., three times commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, charged that hundreds of draft-eligible single men are "hiding" in essential industries and must be ferreted out before family heads are called for active service on a general scale.

Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt in a radio address Wednesday night in which he said fathers were the only important source of manpower left emphasized that the drafting of men with critical skills and "all of what remains of the less skilled and unskilled layer of war industry" would deal a "paralyzing blow" to the war production program.

Van Zandt suggested that men now working in limited service jobs be moved up to active status and replaced with 4-F (physically incapacitated) registrants.

He said most state conventions of the VFW and the American Legion already have gone on record against the fathers' draft until all other registrant classifications have been exhausted.

"I believe that before congress permits the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers a full survey should be made of all existing draft deferments with a view to delaying the induction of heads of families," he added.

"I see no necessity for drafting pre-Pearl Harbor fathers now, since we already have an army large enough to carry on with the war."

Van Zandt emphasized that the new inventory of the deferment classifications should be more extensive than the periodic checkups ordered by Major Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director.

"This time we've really got to get to the bottom of the barrel," he said. "The war manpower commission it seems, always is ordering a reclassification of one group or another, but too many men who should be in the army are slipping through."

HAWAII CIVIL RIGHTS TANGLE UNDER PROBE

Three Departments Seek Way Out of Dispute Between Army and Courts.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A comprehensive inquiry was underway today into the legal dispute involving suspension of habeas corpus suits in Hawaii.

Officials of the war, justice and interior departments sought some solution of the long-seething controversy as the army stood pat on its declaration of full martial law in the islands.

The Hawaiian cause celebre was climaxed last Wednesday in Honolulu when Lieut. Gen. Robert Richardson, commander of the Hawaiian department, threatened to jail Federal Judge Delbert Metzger if he attempted to make him pay a $5,000 contempt of court fine.

The territorial civil rights case has been a source of friction between civil and military authorities since Pearl Harbor when the army declared Hawaii was in an active theater of war and subject to military rule.

Subsequently, civil authorities petitioned for the return of their constitutional rights, many of which had been completely revoked. Eighteen powers were restored, but the writ of habeas corpus remained suspended and martial law was continued.

Judge Metzger placed the judiciary in this legal branch ordering Richardson to bring into court two American citizens of German extraction who were allegedly held incommunicado by the army since Pearl Harbor. Richardson refused and Judge Metzger levied the fine.

Judge Metzger reasoned that there could be no half-way legal measures in the restoration of civil rights. Either all rights, including the habeas corpus writs, should be returned, or the military should be in full control.

Acting Secretary of War John J. McCloy described the dispute as a misunderstanding between Richardson and Metzger. The war department, however, upheld Richardson, adding:

"Refusal of Lieut. Gen. Robert Richardson of Hawaiian defense to the decision of a federal court in the test cases brought to put an end to martial law has war department approval."

Meanwhile, the three government agencies are attempting to make their way out of this legal impasse. Some observers expressed the belief that the issue may have to be decided in a presidential or supreme court review.

INVESTIGATORS PROBING DEATH

Doctor Fails To Agree With Bette Davis on Time Mate Received Fatal Injury.

(By International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—Police and district attorney investigators today pursued their investigation of the death of Arthur Farnsworth, husband of screen star Bette Davis, despite the actress' belief that Farnsworth died of injuries received in a fall two months ago.

Farnsworth, a liaison man for an aircraft precision instrument firm, died Wednesday night of a fractured skull after collapsing on Hollywood boulevard Monday afternoon.

Miss Davis recalled that Farnsworth suffered a head injury in a fall down stairs at Butternut, their New Hampshire home, late in June, and she attributed his death to this.

Investigators pointed out, however, that this explanation was at variance with autopsy findings and they scheduled a conference with the autopsy surgeon for a thorough study of the medical phases of the case.

Dr. Homer R. Keyes, assistant coroner's autopsy surgeon, reported yesterday that the injury from which Farnsworth died had been received anywhere from two days to two weeks before he collapsed. He did not, police pointed out, place the injury as far back as two months ago.

On the basis of information given them by Col. Paul Mantz, an associate, authorities studied the possibility that Farnsworth may have been a victim of foul play because of his knowledge of war production.

STEEL STRIKE SPREADS

YOUNGSTOWN — (UP) — Officials of the Republic Steel corporation reported a Bessemer converter was shut down today and production of three blast furnaces was reduced as more than 500 employes of their 19-inch blooming mill joined a strike which began Monday over a dispute involving 36 employes.

Up and Down THE STREET

Police sometimes use their sense of humor to inject some color into the otherwise tedious job of typing routine reports of their activities. Occasionally one of the officers will produce a gem of brevity and humor, like this one that appeared in the reports this morning. "Charles Mull, Akron, came to the station all drunked up and demanded to be locked up. He was accommodated." That was at 12:30 a. m. today, and the Mansfield visitor was still a guest of the city today.

Victory garden looters are still on the job destroying the fruits of long hours of labor on the part of Mansfielders. Latest victim of this "sport" is Dale Patterson, 75 Ausdale avenue. He has a garden at Racmelton farm on Marion avenue road. Last night he went to pick his lima beans expecting to harvest nearly a peck. Instead he found the bean plants torn up by the roots, stripped of their beans and lying dead and withered near the garden plot, he told Sheriff Frank Robinson.

The flower gardens at the Maxwell Springs pumping station have been a fruitful source of bouquets this summer for offices at the city building. For several months O. C. Kalbfreisch, city waterworks superintendent, has been bringing fresh posies from the pumping station to brighten city offices. It's been a seasonable parade of blossoms, sometimes the seasons get a little mixed and this week he brought in two big roses with a bouquet of huge marigolds and asters. Workers at the station also like to [illegible] hobby for their spare time and they have built up the variety and quality.

SEEKS TO AID SALARIED MEN

Bender Points Out Living Costs, Taxes Rise While Pay Decreases.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Rep. George Bender, Cleveland Republican, said today something should be done to balance white-collar workers' salaries and living costs.

While employes in manufacturing plants receive higher wages non-manufacturing workers are struggling along on peacetime pay, or leaving their jobs, Bender said, suggesting the development would change the political outlook of millions.

"Figures released by the Office of Price Administration," his statement added, "show that the weekly wages of workers in manufacturing plants rose by 28.9 per cent of the period between Jan. 1, 1941 and March 1, 1943 after making allowances for the increased cost of living.

"But real wages of non-manufacturing workers, including clerical help, declined 2.9 per cent during the same period.

"White collar employes, whose living costs have risen sharply in the period since Pearl Harbor, find themselves faced with high taxes and dwindling incomes at the same time.

"By leaving their positions, they have abandoned their status as members of a great independent-minded, non-partisan group. If their departure is to be permanent, the nation as a whole will have lost an important ingredient of effective public opinion. This new situation poses a question which the executive agencies of our government can not long ignore."

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Camp Campbell, Ky.,
August 23, 1943.

Hi Rex:

It seems as though the only time I ever write you is when something of interest in the way of sports happens down here, but after all sports is your business.

Arrived back here O.K. from my recent furlough, but I can truthfully say that my last trip back was one that I really hated to make. It would have been all right with me if I had been told I could stay in Mansfield this time.

I could call this an anniversary letter, because it was just 16 months today that I was inducted into the army at Fort Hayes. Sounds like a long time, but it really doesn't seem that long because time has gone rather fast. And I'm glad that it has, too.

In a recent letter I told you of the appearance here of the Chicago Cubs in an exhibition game with the 12th Armored Division baseball team. Even though Camp Campbell is located in a remote part of the country, stars of the diamond continue to find their way here in games against the "Hellcats," nickname of the 12th.

Last of the modern baseball greats to appear here was Johnny Beasley, now a lieutenant in the Army Air corps, and formerly a pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, and star of the 1942 world series.

Beasley was here last Saturday, playing with the Nashville Bridge company team, a semi-pro outfit. Johnny isn't just pitching now, he is also playing right field. He started in that position in Saturday's game, but with his team trailing 7 to 4 in the sixth inning, he was sent to the mound, and pitched the brand of ball he did with the Cardinals, pulling the Nashville team out of a hole, and defeating the 12th team 9 to 8 in 10 innings.

I didn't get to see the game, as it was my Saturday afternoon to work, but those who did say that Beasley really pitched. The defeat was the seventh for the 12th division team in 50 games this season, which isn't bad at all.

Three more well known ball players will appear here next Monday and Tuesday when the "Hellcats" meet the Second Army team. Playing with the Second Army will be Lee Grissom, Hugh Mulcahy, and Ken Silvestri. Saturday and Sunday the Fort Oglethorpe team, champions of the recent service baseball tournament held in Nashville, will be here.

Baseball seems to be the top sport among the service men, and with both the 12th and 20th divisions having teams, there is hardly ever a week goes by that there isn't one or more games for the men to see.

According to earlier plans we were to be out on another bivouac the early part of this week, beginning today. The entire division is out now, but at the last minute it was decided not to take the Rear Echelon, which didn't make us mad at all. We were out for three days last week, returning Thursday morning, and I might add we were all glad to get back to camp too

We are going to get plenty of living in the great outdoors beginning next month when the division leaves for maneuvers in the vicinity of Lebanon, Tenn. Maneuvers are scheduled to begin Sept. 13, however we are leaving early in the month, as we are to be at the maneuver area by the 6th of the month.

* * *

This will be new for most of us in the division, and we are all looking forward to some real experiences. Living out in tents during October and November will not be a picnic either.

Well Rex it's getting late and time to get to bed so will close. Say hello to the rest of the gang, as well as the boys in the back room.

Sincerely,
Bob Flohr.

NO FISHING FOR JAPANESE

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(U.P.)—The state legislature has just delivered a final blow to the Japanese on the Pacific coast, all of whom are now either in assembly camps or in the army, from which they might never recover. No Japanese, hereafter, is to be granted a fishing license. The law, however, is aimed primarily at large-time Japanese fishing on the Pacific coast.

Baseball Hits Sked Dead Spot

Week-End Program Followed By Lull.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE FANTASTIC schedule drawn up by the major leagues this year has dropped into another of its dead spots.

Lots of games remain before the season ends Oct. 3, but except for full programs tomorrow and Sunday the menu for the next few days has less meat than a vegetable plate luncheon.

Over a three-day stretch in the American league next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, for instance, the total activity will be one game between the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox. National league games also are rationed, although not quite so stringently.

The letup began yesterday when only two teams in the senior circuit and four in the American league saw action.

The Chicago Cubs edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in the lone National league contest with Paul Derringer pitching six-hit ball. It took a two-run homer by Phil Cavarretta in the sixth inning and a triple by Harry Lowrey in the seventh, however, to beat the Buccaneers.

In the American league the Boston Red Sox beat Cleveland 4-1 and Washington halved a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns.

Mike Ryba, the Red Sox' jack of all trades, officiated in the victory over the Indians with seven-hit hurling. His teammates made only four safeties over Mike Naymick and Pete Center, but were given aid and comfort by four Cleveland errors.

The Senators stopped the Browns in the first game 9-7 for Early Wynn's 15th pitching triumph, although he had help from Dutch Leonard to get the final out.

Jake Early and Stan Spence hit homers for the Senators and George McQuinn and Frank Hayes did the same for St. Louis. Then in the nightcap tripper and the Browns won 4-3 when Milo Candini forced in three runs with walks while the bases were loaded.

Today's schedule calls for no games in the daytime, but has two in each league on tap for tonight.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mike Jacobs has been absorbing a few blasts for setting a $16.50 top for tickets at tonight's Hank Armstrong-Ray Robinson fight, but Mike can take it as long as he can take it . . . But some of the more solvent beachcombers point out that the customers all over the country are demanding ringside seats at any price and won't go for the cheap tickets . . . Record stuff: George Case, with 42 thefts so far, is a good bet to win his fifth straight American league base stealing crown . . . Ty Cobb never won more than three in a row . . . Rudy York has hit 15 homers in August and needs only four more to bust his one-month record.

Shortly after Cedric Durst resigned as manager of the San Diego Pacific Coast league club, reports Monroe McConnell, he received a notice that a package of fruit had arrived for him . . . Thinking about choice Imperial Valley grapefruit, Durst hurried to the express office, where he was handed a small box . . . Inside he found nine lemons each numbered for a position in the lineup—and three were rotten.

When the Minnesota publicity department wrote for dope on prospective football opponents, Michigan's Fred De Lano answered that Fritz Crisler will be able to call upon such players as Elroy Hirsch from Wisconsin, Paul White, Bob Wiese Mervin Pregulman and Julius Franks, Michigan letter winners last fall, "to say nothing of your own Mr. Bill Daley, for whom we extend our heartiest thanks."

Mel Jones, the Dodgers' road secretary, leaves this week-end for the Quonset Point, R. I., naval base . . . Besides fighting in the main event, Hank Armstrong will play a manager's part at the Garden tonight. Cecil Hudson, former national amateur lightweight champ who is in the semi-windup, is Hank's one-man "stable." . . . Tom Connolly, chief of the American league umpires, is on a scouting tour for blind Tom talent.

Tommy Harmon now flying a fighter plane in China, reports he lost all his baggage when the transport carrying it was sunk. "So I shall dress like a native for the duration," explains Tom . . . En route to China Harmon ran into Johnny Blood the old Packer and Pittsburgh pro star . . . Pfc Dwain Abbott of Bellingham, Wash., recently retained his 175-pound title at Keesler Field, Miss. by knocking out Pvt. Marrion Bottoms of Springfield, Ills. . . . You can write your own gag about where Marrion landed.

ALL-STAR OVERSEAS TOUR DISCUSSED

CHICAGO —(AP)— Baseball now is on the home stretch of a successful season with the possibility of an anti-climatical windup provided by an All-Star overseas tour.

Meeting today with Commissioner K. M. Landis were Presidents Will Harridge of the American league and Ford Frick of the National league to discuss plans for sending players to entertain soldiers and sailors at the front.

Since the plan has advanced to the conference stage, it was believed the trip had government sanction.

Draw Bead on Big Prize

Grand American Trap Title Goes on Block.

By FRITZ HOWELL

VANDALIA —(AP)— The most coveted prize in trapdom, the Grand American handicap championship, goes on the block today over the 100-target route at the 44th annual tournament with a field of more than 800 competitors.

Shorn of its $10,000 guaranteed purse because of the war, the classic's payoff will be based on the number of entrants.

James F. Holderman, Morris, Ill., farmer, was on hand to defend the crown he won last year but tradition gave him no chance to repeat. In the 44 years of the roaring grand, not one marksman has been able to capture the title twice.

For the first time in Grand American history, the handicap class will not be the tournament finale. The 50-pair doubles competition held over from yesterday because the weather will be staged following the No. 1 attraction with Rudy Etchen, shooting instructor at Great Lakes naval base, as defending champion.

James A. Sabata, 29-year-old farmer from David City, Neb., won the handicap's dress rehearsal shoot yesterday, breaking 98 of 100 clays. Paul Butterbough of Lancaster was second with 97 of 100.

Miss "Skipper" Winski of Wellsburg, W. Va., took the women's preliminary title in a shootoff with Mrs. Cal Ray of Coquille, Ore.

Champions decided yesterday included:

North American clay targets, 16-yards:

Men—Orla C. Booher, 44, of Fairmland, Ind., 200 of 200; women—Miss Florence Mus, 33, of Cincinnati, O., 192 of 200, plus 23 of 25 in shoot-offs; professionals—J. R. Hinkle, 64, of Corsicana, Tex., 195 of 200.

Husband-wife: Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Andrews, Spartansburg, S. C., 377 of 400.

Father-son: Ralph Jenkins of Orleans, Ind., and Lieut. William J. Jenkins of Purcell, Okla., 391 of 400.

Junior—Bobby Lee Stifal, 17, of Casey, Ill., 99 to 100.

Sub-junior: Roy Foxworthy, 14, of Indianapolis, Ind., 95 or 100.

Service team: Army, 484 of 500, Navy, 480 of 500.

Champion of champions: (For state title holders): Men—L. E. Smith, Peru, Ind., 99 of 100, 49 of 50 in three-way shoot-off; Women—Miss Betsy Herndon, Joycetown, Ky., 91 of 100.

Class Champion Class AA—H. L. Cheek, Clinton, Ind., 100 of 100; Class A—Orla C. Booher, Farmland, Ind., 100 of 100; Class B—William Harding, Toledo, 100 of 100; Class C—A. H. Fuller, Sturtevant, Wis., 99 of 100. Class D—P. E. Morris, Wichita, Kas., 98 of 100.

Servicemen, individuals: Sgt. Mercer Tennille, Tyndal Field, Fla., 99 of 100 plus 49 of 50 in a six-way shootoff

National sportswriters event: Jim Stuber, Ohio Conservation Bulletin, Vandalia, 42 of 50.

Expect Record Crowd at Cincy

CINCINNATI— (AP)—Although the point at issue is scarcely debatable, the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals are likely to play tonight before the biggest night crowd of the season.

The advance sale indicates the previous record of 16,000 will be topped by folks hoping against hope that the second-place Reds can somehow whittle down the Cards' 12½-game lead in time to make the National league race interesting.

Bucky Walters for the Reds and Morton Cooper for the Cards are the pitchers.

Assuming that they pass their physical examinations Pitcher Johnny Vander Meer and outfielder Bert Haas are due to leave the Reds for the services before long. Both report to Fort Thomas, Ky., tomorrow for induction.

COACH NAMED

DELPHOS—(INS)—Jack Koch, former assistant athletic coach at Lima South high school, today was named athletic director at Delphos high to succeed J. W. Alley, resigned.

RACE POSTPONED

GREENVILLE — (AP) — The Horsemen's Futurity for pacers, postponed yesterday because of weather, was scheduled as the feature trotting event at Darke county fair today.

DIMAG PROMOTED

SANTA ANA, Calif. —(AP)— It's Sergeant Joe DiMaggio today. The army air forces announced the promotion from corporal to sergeant of the ex-major leaguer.

Stephen A. Reed, Harvard high jumper some 30 years ago is field engineer for a Massachusetts rope company.

Romance for Gunder the Wonder? Maybe

Is it romance, Mr. Haegg? Gunder (The Wonder) Haegg, world's greatest distance runner who has completed an exhibition tour in the U. S., hasn't said, but Dorothy Nortier, Swedish-American girl he is pictured with above, replied to newsmen's questions with a "could be." Gunder and Miss Nortier were snapped at a night spot on Broadway. Gunder leaves for home soon.

Springfield In Tourney

Ohio Team Tangles With Whiteville, N. C.

MILES CITY, Mont.—(AP)—Big league scouts scuffed the alkali dust of this eastern Montana cow town today to cull the talent of American Legion junior baseball kids beginning their own World series.

Springfield, O., and Whiteville, N. C., square away in the first game this afternoon.

The tourney is a two-defeat elimination affair.

Originally the classic was arranged for four teams, but was broadened last night to make room for both Springfield and Whiteville which had been scheduled to play for their sectional title.

The Minneapolis Richfields and Flint, Mich., were matched in the other first-round contest, to be played tonight. New Orleans which got a first-round bye, will meet the Whiteville - Springfield loser tomorrow morning.

The Legion ball-belters will be under the critical appraisal of such scouts as Pat Patterson of the Cincinnati Reds, Hollis Thurston, ivory hunter for the Pittsburgh Pirates; Claude (Bubber) Jonnard of the New York Giants, Pat Monahan of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Frank Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

All the teams but Whiteville, N. C., which did not arrive until late last night, were guests at a pre-tourney banquet.

THE CLUBHOUSE

By CHIP ROYAL
(AP Features Sports Editor)

When a fellow uses his bean for something else than a place to hang his hat, he usually gets what he goes after, as witness the case of Georgia's Sammy Byrd, now of the Philadelphia Byrds.

If you're a baseball fan, you'll remember Sammy as the Yankee outfield slugger who "wore holes" in several pairs of pants as well as the Yankee Stadium bench waiting for Babe Ruth to get through patroling the clover.

A golf bug will recognize the slugger as the Byrd who started links tongues wagging when he won the $5,500 Greensboro open in 1942 with a 72-hole score of 279, five under par.

Regardless of where or how you saw Sammy in action, you'll have to admit that he is one guy who has taken advantage of all his opportunities. He has never been afraid to take a chance, no matter what the cost, and he has never given up hope of being in the money as a slugger, one way or another.

We ran into Sammy in Chicago at the Tam O'Shanter All-American. He still had that half-cocked smile of his baseball days—and he was still in there slugging.

"I figure golf has added 10 years to my life as an athlete," smiled Sammy. "And like baseball," he continued, "I'm always waiting for someone to get finished. In fact, I've found that the breaks in golf are about the same as you get in life."

If you study those quotes, you'll know Sammy Byrd. They are typical of every move he has made since he was big enough to forget Bremen, Ga., and shift for himself.

Sam was only 19 when he signed to play ball for Birmingham in the Southern Association. Before his spikes could cut a piece of grass, young Byrd was shipped to

SAMMY BYRD

Jonesboro in the Tri-State League.

* * *

"I never got very far in any league," he admitted, "but I didn't let it worry me. I knew that I would find my goal somewhere."

Sam hit .348 for Jonesboro in 59 games during 1926 and the following year he was shipped to Knoxville in the South Atlantic League. His .331 batting average, including 170 hits, attracted the attention of the Yankees and he became a Ruppert farmhand via Albany.

After clouting the pill for .371 and scoring 120 runs in 130 games with the Eastern League Senators, Sammy was recalled by the Yanks in 1929. He got into 62 games that year and hit .312.

"That's the best I ever could hit for the Yanks," said Sammy with that top-of-the-mouth smile. "As a matter of fact, it's the best average I had in major league ball including my six years in New York and one in Cincinnati.

"But I don't think I've shot my best golf yet!" (He told us that six weeks before he won the Chicago Victory National golf championship with a 72-hole total of 277, seven strokes under par). And if we know Sammy, he still hasn't shot his best golf.

Sammy's golf activities started back in 1936 when he met Walter Hagen in Florida. They became close friends. Every time the Yankees played in Detroit, Sammy hot-footed it to Hagen's hotel. When he wasn't warming the Yankee bench, he would be swinging a golf club in Hagen's room.

"Walter would grab a golf club the minute I entered the room and say 'Now, I'll show you how to hit Bridges tomorrows' I'd always reply, the hell with Bridges, show me how to hit a golf ball," said Sammy.

"After I figured I had had enough of the driver, I told him, never mind that stuff, how do you play the pitch shots? From that we went on to the other shots and I can truthfully say I learned all the golf I know in Walter Hagen's hotel room."

Regardless of his golf success, Sammy can't forget certain things about baseball. For instance, he tells everyone: "Almost every shot I take, I remember little things I learned about swinging at a baseball, and I know they improve my game 25 per cent."

For those who listen to him at the 19th hole, Sammy also has a kind word for baseball. "That baseball association is a wonderful thing. It takes care of a player and his family no matter what happens to them. We need something like that in golf."

Boil it all down and Sammy has a good idea. He wants the golf clubs and associations to take better care of the professional player, provide sick and death benefits as they do in baseball, and insure the pro a living as long as he can play. Sammy probably will get his way in that too, one of these days.

PAT HARDER PICKED AS MOST VALUABLE

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Pat Harder, former University of Wisconsin fullback, today was chosen most valuable player on the college all-star squad which defeated the Washington Redskins, 27 to 7, Wednesday night.

Harder, now with the Marine corps at Parris Island, S. C., contributed 11 points to the collegians' total. Votes were cast by the newspapermen who covered the contest.

Oldsters Steal Show

Hall of Fame Team Returns To Action.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK—(AP)—There were still 35,000 lumps in 35,000 throats around the village today—all because a dozen old men walked out on a ball field.

These weren't just any 12 old gaffers, mind you. Nor was it just any old baseball clambake at the Polo Grounds yesterday. It was an $800,000,000 baseball show, put on by the Journal-American to sell war bonds. And the more-than-35,000 who showed up had Uncle Sam's cash registers really working for the war effort.

It was quite a party, too, what with Broadway and baseball, Hollywood and the hall of fame, and —especially— Babe and the "boys".

But Babe and the "boys" stole the show—stole it from the top "name" comedians, dance bands, movie actors and singers in show business who did their stuff during the half-hour fuss. And they stole it, too, from the Giant-Yankee-Dodger All-Stars who turned in a 5-2 win over the Army's New Cumberland (Pa.) team.

The Babe, naturally, was George Herman Ruth, the man with a bat. The Babe and Walter Johnson were two of the ancient dozen who had Pop Time turn the hour-glass back to give today's fan a look at what probably was the greatest collection of baseball "ivory" ever put on display in one park. Seven of the dozen are in the hall of fame.

Ex-Mayor Jimmy Walker introduced each of the diamond's diamonds. Around the infield were George Sisler, Eddie Collins and bow-legged Honus Wagner from the hall of fame, and Frankie the Fordham Flash Frisch, who'll probably get there one of these days. Tris Speaker was flanked in the outer pastures by Duffy Lewis of the Boston Red Sox's mighty Lewis - Speaker - Hooper outfield, and Red Murray, who once saved a game for the New York Giants by catching a fly during a lightning storm. C. McGillicuddy, known to the trade as Connie Mack, "managed" the cast. Bill Klem, the old arbitrator in person, "umpired," and Roger Bresnahan did the catching.

It didn't matter that in fielding some of the Babe's "practice shots" Murray fell down, Speaker was practically decapitated and Collins was all but carried into right field by a line drive. The folks had a look at 'em, and the Babe finally parked one. That was the icing on the cake.

INDIANAPOLIS TRIBE GAINS IN AA RACE

(By Associated Press)

Indianapolis climbed to within a half game of second place Columbus last night by beating Kansas City 7-2 while weather postponed all other American Association contests.

Taking three of four games in their series with the Blues, the score three clinching runs in the Indians came from behind to fifth inning. Bob Logan, whose wildness at the start gave Kansas City a pair of runs, steadied down thereafter to get credit for the win.

Standard 12-guage trap loads make excellent all-around hunting shells.

Naymick Hurls In Bad Luck

Gives 4 Hits In 14 Frames, Loses 2 Games.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Big Mike Naymick, the American league's tallest baseball player, still holds his title as the Cleveland Indian hard luck hurler as the tribe moves into Comisky park to open its final western trek tonight. The Indians and White Sox are deadlocked in third place.

Naymick, six foot, eight-inch rookie from the eastern league allowed only four hits in 14 innings against the Boston Red Sox during the eight-game series which ended yesterday with a Red Sox triumph, 4 to 1.

After yielding a single safety in six innings of a 13-chapter Cleveland defeat Sunday, Naymick started against Mike Ryba yesterday, gave up only three hits in eight innings but was charged with the defeat.

Four Boston double plays and four Cleveland misplays contributed to the defeat. Coupled with Indian inability to utilize to advantage the seven hits collected off Ryba.

Pete Center relieved Naymick in the ninth and allowed only one hit. Cleveland's only tally came in the final frame, on a base on balls, Roy Cullenbine's single and an infield out by Jeff Heath.

The Redsox staged a three-run splurge in the fourth, fashioned on singles by Tony Lupien and Jim Tabor, a base on balls, the first of the Indian miscues and a long fly by Johnny Lazor.

Leon Culberson, Rookie Boston outfielder, injured his right knee in the fourth when he collided with Naymick in a play at first. He was replaced by Al Simmons.

* * *

Dr. M. H. Castle, Cleveland team physician, said x-rays showed no fracture, but added Culberson probably would be out of action for several days.

IN SEMI-FINALS

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Shirley Fry of Akron, O., and Doris Hart, doubles team, qualified for the doubles team, qualified for the semi-final round of the National Girls' Lawn Tennis doubles championships by trouncing Gloria Evans of Upper Montclair, N. J., and Connie Clifton of New Smyrna, Fla., 6-4, 8-1.

MEET FOR TITLE

CLEVELAND— (INS)—Jimmy Thompson, city public links champion and Wallace H. Bower, of the Westwood country club, were to meet today in the 36-hole finals of the 1943 Cleveland district amateur golf championship. Thompson defeated Jim Caspio, 3 and 2, and Bower eliminated John Racey, 6 and 4, in the semi-finals yesterday.

MAKES REPORT ON FINDING IN HOLMES COUNTY

Chamber of Commerce Gives Recommendations at Budget Hearing.

MILLERSBURG — At a joint meeting of the Millersburg Chamber of Commerce, Holmes county officials and representatives of the Ohio State Chamber of Commerce this week, a tentative budget for the county for 1944 was presented by Auditor J. F. Jameson and a summary of findings and recommendations for improvements in the administration of the county was presented by Harold J. Mills and R. E. Redman of the state organization.

The meeting, called by R. M. White, president of the local chamber of commerce was attended by Auditor Jameson, Probate Judge F. W. Fankhauser, Treasurer Ruby Walter, County Prosecutor Raymond Miller, Clerk of Courts Keith Kaser, Commissioner Frank Engel and C. A. Calhoun, and County Superintendent of Schools D. C. Egger, among the county officials and a number of other interested citizens.

The survey of operations of Holmes county, prepared by Harold J. Mills and W. C. McWilliams of the Research department of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, complimented the county in general on its "reasonably sound" condition, and the county officials in particular on their conscientious and able handling of the county's business. The summary stated that in comparing the expenditures of the individual offices in Holmes county with other counties having a similar sized population, every office without exception made a very good showing.

A number of recommendations for improving the economy of operating the county's business were made by the analysists including the assuming of the entire responsibility for county purchasing in the office of the county commissioners, the wholesale purchasing of supplies at the Children's Home as is being done at the county infirmary, and the transferring of the belance in the county sinking fund to the general fund.

W. F. KEIGHTLEY TAKEN BY DEATH

MILLERSBURG—Mrs. William F. Keightley, 82, died Wednesday at her home in Holmesville.

Her husband survives with a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Dague of Lodi, two sons, Henry C. and William B., of Holmesville; two grandchildren, two brothers, William Wolboldt of Holmesville and Simon Wolboldt of Cleveland, and a sister, Miss Mary Wolboldt of Cleveland.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 3 p. m. at the residence of the son, Henry Keightley at Holmesville. Rev. C. S. McGrath of the Holmesville Federated church will officiate. Burial will be in Holmesville cemetery.

GETS AWARD

BUCYRUS—At least one Bucyrus blood donor became eligible for a gold button, given with the fifth Red Cross blood donation, during the visit of the mobile blood donor service here this week.

Miss Gertrude Foulke, South Sandusky, who has given five pints of blood, will receive the gold pin when silver buttons are awarded to approximately 150 other Bucyrus donors for their third blood donation.

GALION PRINCIPAL RESIGNS TO ACCEPT FAIRFIELD COUNTY JOB

GALION— Announcement was made here, Thursday, by M. A. Povenmire, superintendent of schools, that Edward R. Garverick has accepted a position as principal of the Berne Union High schol at Sugar Grove, Fairfield county.

For the past five years Garverick was principal of the North Elementary school. Prior to that time he taught for 10 years in Morrow county. He was graduated from Galion High school and Ashland college, and at present is completing his mater's degree at Ohio State university. In his new position he will have charge of a school of 400 or more enrollment in a wealthy rural community.

The Galion Board of Education, meeting today in a special session, will probably consider filling the vacancy and other problems pertaining to the opening of school.

Honoring Warren Sherer who is home on a furlough from Camp Beale, Calif., and Mrs. Samuel Cook of Marion, who will leave soon to join her husband who is in military service in Portland, Wash., a family group met Wednesday evening for a picnic dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eichhorn. The occasion also marked the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eichhorn. Guests were present from Bucyrus, Marion and Galion.

DEATH CLAIMS WILLARD MAN

WILLARD — George Barnett, 67, a native of Kentucky, died at his home here Wednesday. He had been an invalid for 20 years.

His widow, Mollie, and 13 children survive. There are nine sons: Earl in the U. S. navy, Lee in the army, and Chester, Estel, Boyd, Arlie, Joe, Cecil and Carl of Willard; Four daughters: Mrs. C. P. Short of Dayton; Mrs. J. W. Hammond of North Fairfield; and Mrs. Laura Robinson and Mrs. Reva Kimberlin of Willard.

The body was removed to the Fink funeral home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

LISTED AS MISSING

BUCYRUS—A former Crawford man, Lieut. Luther H. Baker, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Baker, now of Wooster, was listed among the war casualties Thursday. Lieut. Baker was graduated from the Sulphur Springs high school in 1937 when his father was pastor of the Lutheran church here.

THIEVES LOOT GARDENS IN SHELBY AREA

Police Warn of Prosecution After Several Plots Are Ravaged.

SHELBY—With the garden at the home of Carl Daugherty on West Main street here being practically stripped of crops by thieves, Shelby police today issued a warning that anyone found taking products from gardens would be prosecuted.

Police said thieves took all of the tomatoes and beets from the Daugherty garden as well as apples and sweet corn. Many of the green tomatoes were destroyed.

Residents all along the Boulevard reported to police that a woman had gotten into their gardens and taken a large amount of the vegetables. She got away before she could be apprehended.

Mrs. George Alexander of Shelby had a narrow escape this week when four cans of pears she was canning blew up. As she was standing away from the stove, the flying glass missed her but plastered the walls of the kitchen.

CLUB OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

Crestline Eagles Auxiliary Entertains 65 at Dinner.

CRESTLINE—The sixth anniversary of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Crestline Eagles was celebrated with a dinner at Greenlawn for which covers were placed for 65.

Guests were present from Shelby and Galion.

Husbands joined the members of the Eagles club following the dinner for an evening of dancing.

Music for the dance was furnished by Nelson Blocker's orchestra.

Ersine club members and three guests, Mrs Harry Mautz of Marion, Miss Carrie Miller and Miss Anna Haworth enjoyed a picnic supper Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. D. C. Minick.

Following the supper, plans were made to hold another gathering in two weeks at the home of Mrs. S. F. Trimble. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing bridge.

If you ever need $25, $50, $100 or more quickly and simply, come to Household Finance. If you have a job so that you can repay in small monthly payments, you are welcome to apply for any amount up to $1000. The sooner you repay the less your loan costs. Example: A $50 loan repaid in 6 monthly instalments of $9.24 each costs $5.44—if repaid in one month the cost is only $1.50. No endorsers or guarantors are ever needed. We never make inquiries of friends or relatives.

STOCK MARKET OUTLOOK SEEMS BIT BRIGHTER

Improved Tendencies Among Select Issues Persist In Early Trading.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selectively improved tendencies persisted in today's stock market.

Up fractionally at a moderately active opening were Homestake Mining, Dome Mines, Childs Co., Consolidated Edison, General Motors and U. S. Gypsum. Slightly lower were U. S. Steel, Radio Corp., and General Electric.

Market analysts scanned the Dun & Bradstreet survey which disclosed that this week's retail spending throughout the nation fell considerably below the percentage increases registered in earlier months but remained 5 to 10 per cent above the aggregate at this time in 1942. Growing shortages accounted for the flattening out of distribution in a number of lines.

CHICAGO—(AP)—A firm undertone prevailed in grain markets at the opening today, largely as a result of a lack of offerings rather than any aggressive buying demand.

Wheat started ⅛ lower to ¾ higher, September $1.45⅛-1.45, December $1.47-1.46⅞, and rye was unchanged to ⅜ higher, September $1.03-1.03¼.

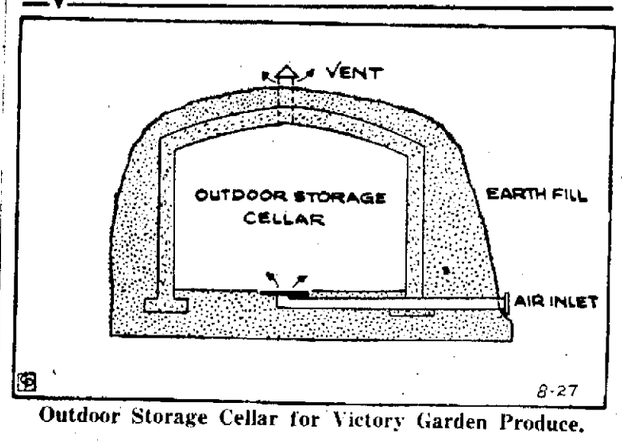
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Outdoor Storage Cellar for Victory Garden Produce.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Assn.)

WHERE IT is possible (especially on a side hill) the outdoor storage cellar is superior to the basement cool room for storage of Victory garden produce.

This storage room must be weatherproof and free from moisture and frost. Usually such cellars are built partly below the ground level and all but the door covered with a foot or two of earth to prevent freezing. The amount of earth covering necessarily varies with the severity of the climate. In the extreme north a covering of two or three feet deep is required, and over this can be piled straw or corn husks.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, a ventilating flue is set into the roof and an air inlet in the floor or side wall to allow for the circulation of air. These openings must be covered with screening to keep out rodents.

In a storage cellar, or "roof cellar" of this type, a dirt floor is desirable. The walls should be waterproofed on the outside.

Musical Troubles.

In "Henry Aldrich Swings It," Madison film, Henry's troubles are musical ones, making them no less bothersome to him, but more agreeable to his fans. They center around a $10,000 violin, belonging to Fritz Field, which Henry picks up believing to be his own. It isn't long before he is disillusioned, but by that time he and his swing band have secretly played a raided night club, and the precious violin is somewhere in the padlocked place. Before Henry gets out of this jam, a few more gray hairs are added to Mr. Aldrich's head.

Friendship Aided.

The career of Carol Hughes, lovely and talented Hollywod actress, has been more or less identified with that of Patsy Kelly. They appear together in the new P. R. C. comedy, "My Son, The Hero," which opened yesterday at the Park. Miss Hughes started her work in vaudeville doing musical stock. Her home town is Chicago. Then through her friend, Patsy Kelly, she broke into pictures. This character is just the opposite of the Patsy Kelly delineation of a rough and tough dame with a big heart and loud manners. The movie is now showing at the Park along with "Texas Rangers."

War Rallying Song.

Dan D. Emmett, one of the first to use blackface on the stage, composed the song "Dixie." It became the first rallying song during the war of secession. He sang it for the first time while appearing with Bryant's Minstrels in New York City in 1859. Emmett said he got the idea for the song "Dixie" after hearing touring actors with whom he played say, "I wish I was down in Dixie now," when complaining about the bleak northern weather. The song "Dixie" was first sung at the inauguration of Jefferson Davis as president of the Confederacy at Monigomery, Ala. The film "Dixie" is showing at the Ohio.

MOUNTBATTEN SEES MARSHALL IN WASHINGTON

Concludes Whirlwind Series of Conferences on Asia War Plans.

miral Oscar C. Badger, assistant chief of naval operations for logistic plans. Badger's presence indicated that the question of supplies figured prominently in the discussions.

Knox paid tribute to Mountbatten, saying he was appointed to his new post "because he is the best man for that job." Asked whether his selection presaged an early drive on Burma, Knox replied:

"I would say that his selection for the southeast Asia command is an indication of growing interest in that area with a view to future operations."

Knox added that he knew of no American naval forces that would be under Mountbatten's command "at this time." However, he said he expected the British to provide naval aid in the Pacific but he could not say whether this would come in the near future. He pointed out that the British have repeatedly said that all of their forces "are available to bring about unconditional surrender of the Japanese just as soon as the enemies in Europe are disposed of."

As Mountbatten Reached U. S.

LINER CRASHES

15 Passengers Killed at Rio, No Americans on Board.

RIO DE JANEIRO—(AP)—A three-motored Brazilian air liner struck a naval academy building in a takeoff from the Santos Dumont airport in a fog and 15 or more of the 21 persons aboard, including the Archibishop of Sao Paulo, Gaspar Afonseca Esilva, were killed. Three were missing and three hospitalized.

No United States citizens were known to have been on the plane.

The ship was a junkers called "The City of Rio de Janeiro" on the first leg of the first of its two daily round trips between Sao Paulo and Brazil, the plane struck the Naval Academy building with one wing.

Jones Completes 1944 Food Program, Will Speak Tonight

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—War Food Administrator Marvin Jones today put last touches on a 1944 food program calling for unrestricted production but closer supervision of food distribution.

He is expected to discuss its broad principles in a radio broadcast (CBS) at 10.45 p. m. EWT, today. Details will not be announced until after congress is consulted.

The government will seek to encourage maximum food production through assistance to farmers in obtaining labor, machinery, fertilizer and credit as well as through announcement of guaranteed prices on all essential crops.

One of the major government controls over distribution likely will be the extension of federal licensing of processors and handlers of additional foods. Meat packers were placed under federal license control Aug. 15.

Jones is expected to assure farmers a price protection high enough to encourage all-out production. Support prices will be designed to include the greater risks and hazards of war-time production and will be announced as early as possible.

The Commodity Credit Corp., if congress agrees to its extension beyond Dec 31 and in increase in its capital, will be the agency through which price supports will be administered. Jones expects to ask for at least $1,000,000,000 additional for the CCC

The WFA, in addition to the price guarantee, will assure farmers a ready market for all their production. Where regular commercial markets do not absorb the entire production the CCC will offer to buy at the support level.

TWO FAVORED

Armour, Long Seen as Possible Successors To Welles.

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Norman Armour, ambassador to Buenos Aires and a career diplomat, appears to have the inside track in the field of possible successors to Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, when and if Welles' resignation is announced.

Breckinridge Long, assistant secretary of state, has strong congressional backing, associates said today, but a man with more diplomatic experience is expected to be the ultimate choice.

Armour is in Washington now "for consultation" and there was some doubt that he would return to Buenos Aires very soon because of Argentina's failure to break off relations with the Axis powers.

mittee if it adopts a course not considered in line with the principles and objectives of the United Nations.

But even limited Anglo-American recognition was expected to advance the cause of French unity and to submerge the factionalism which has plagued Frenchmen everywhere since the fall of France. First evidence of that was announcement that the Fighting French delegation here would abandon that designation, and that henceforth there would be a single representation.

That theory was also borne out in Algiers where Rene Massigli, committee commissioner, said too much emphasis should not be put on the restrictions because recognition itself was the important thing.

The Russian action was interpreted here as blanket endorsement of the committee as a de facto government. It said nothing about a future French government after France itself is liberated

In contrast, the British and American statements both recognized "with sympathy" the committee's desire to be regarded as the group "qualified to insure the administration and defense of (all) French interests," but added:

The United States—"The extent to which it may be possible to give effect to this desire must, however, be reserved for consideration in each case as it arises."

Great Britain "It is the intention of His Majesty's government to give effect to this request as far as possible while reserving the right to consider in consultation with the committee the practical application of this principal in particular cases as they arise."

Mr. Roosevelt's statement recognized the French committee as administering French overseas territories which acknowledge its authority, but specifically said that it did not constitute "recognition of a government of France or of the French empire by the government of the United States."

The British statement made the same qualifications, designating the Allied military command as supreme in theaters of operations and promising the French people a free choice of government after the war, but it added to its acknowledgement on overseas territories, specific recognition of the committee's assumption of fighting French authority in respect to territories in the Levant—Near East.

Canadian recognition embodied all factors included in the British statement. A few hours after the Anglo-American-Canadian-Russian actions were made public, radio reports were received of Brazil's and Peru's recognition of the committee. China is expected to follow soon.

Ten other countries already had recognized it — Belgium, Holland, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Uruguay, Luxembourg, Greece, Norway, Mexico and Poland.

the Japanese still clinging to a foothold on New Georgia island at Bairoko harbor above the captured Munda airfield began to wilt under continued pounding of artillery and slowly advancing infantrymen. Most of the shoreline there now is in American hands.

Forty-five miles above Munda on Vella Lavella island, the Japanese attempted six raids Thursday against United States troop positions. They lost 11 planes to American fighters and one to anti-aircraft gunners.

Across the Kula gulf from Bairoko, the Japanese air base of Vila on Kolombangara was blasted yesterday by 34 tons of bombs in a raid by Americans.

General Promises Havoc For Japan

AN ADVANCED ALLIED AIR BASE—(AP)—Lt. Gen. John L. DeWitt, back from an inspection trip to Attu island—the westernmost point of his command—is determined that "we must carry the war to the Japanese; we must wade in and tear Japan apart, and dynamite and gut her with incendiaries."

Japan must be hit with the full offensive fury of the United Nations—and quickly, the chief of the army's western defense command emphasized.

"Our future—yours, mine and every other American's—is first upon the Pacific," he declared in an interview. "Japan is our mortal foe."

Bold and determined fighting, General DeWitt said, won for Japan most of her early war objectives.

"Since then," he continued, "she has had a year to pour concrete into her gun positions, which cover all the beach landings. . . . She is today training armies from the richest empire in the world overrun peoples. She is pillaging to make guns and bullets to fight us.

"Today we have only Japan to fight. If we wait for Japan to organize the countries she has overrun we will be fighting the most heavily mon-powered nation in the world.

"Alaska is the base from which to launch an offensive. Today we have a chain of bases extending from San Francisco to Attu to carry out Tokyo's ultimate destruction."

At the same time, DeWitt contended, the Philippines should be recaptured to cut asunder the Japanese supply lines while aid is speeded up to China.

"Anything new, Bert, on that black market trial up at the county seat?"

"The jury came in 'bout an hour ago, Judge. The verdict was 'guilty.' I understand the sentence is going to be a mighty stiff one."

"Can't be too stiff to suit me. Anything those law-flouting racketeers get will be too good for them. How they thrive every time there's an opportunity to sell something illegally instead of legally in this country. Just like the bootleggers did during the 14 years when liquor was sold illegally instead of legally.

RUSSIANS JAB DEEPER INTO UKRAINE AREA

Riots Growing In Denmark; Italians Flee To Rome as U. S. Bombs Fall.

SWEDEN — Stockholm press accuses Germany of "brutal attack" in sinking of two Swedish ships by Nazi minesweepers; Swedish government awaits investigation before launching protest to Berlin.

In the European air war, squadrons of Allied bombers and fighters streaked across the English Channel this morning to renew the offensive against the continent. London dispatches said the population of bombed and burned Berlin was rapidly scattering to escape future raids.

Sweden Drafting Protest to Nazis

STOCKHOLM — (AP) — The Swedish foreign office announced today a protest to the German government was being drafted, shortly after a communique stated two German minesweepers had sunk two Swedish fishing boats without warning.

The latest protest, the second in 10 days demanding that Germany halt her attacks on Swedish commercial and military interests, will be presented shortly, it was said.

The 12 crew members aboard the two boats were presumed to have been lost in the attack on five Swedish craft in international waters off the northeast coast of Denmark two days ago.

The incident followed a formal protest Aug. 18, against the firing upon a Swedish naval torpedo boat and air force plane by German gunners aboard a Norwegian freighter off the Swedish coast Aug. 6.

A communique said an investigation has been launched by the navy and that the Swedish legation in Berlin had been asked to learn from the Germans whether any of the 12 men reported to have been on the sunken boats were rescued.

While the government awaited the results of the investigation before launching a protest to Germany, it took a critical view of the sinking and the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter editorially termed it "a brutal attack'.'

Recalling that the Germans had promised repeatedly to instruct their armed forces to respect Swedish neutrality, the paper said, "it is the general opinion that the government, after a short discussion with the German government, cannot just cross over this incident and pass on."

Thousands Flock to Rome For Sanctuary

MADRID —(AP)— A new worry has been added to Italian Premier Pietro Badoglio's cares in recent days, for despite all efforts of police and military authorities thousands upon thousands of provincial Italians are moving into Rome.

Air travelers from Italy arriving in Madrid today estimated that Rome now contains at least 500,000 more Italians than it did before the Allies landed in Sicily, and said the number is daily increasing.

Parks, public squares and plazas are filled nightly with people unable to obtain lodgings and sleeping in the open, the travelers reported.

So far this civilian "March on Rome" from the provinces has been peaceful. It probably was inspired in part by the hope of many Italians that the capital may escape being bombed in the future if the Allies recognize it as an open city.

Nazis Say They Don't Expect Early Invasion

LONDON —(AP)— The German overseas radio said today that "information available from the central Mediterranean does not indicate imminent invasion of the Italian mainland by the Allies."

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, added that "according to present observations Allied shipping in the central Mediterranean can not be described as particularly intensive."

Bombs Hit Hitler's Own Headquarters

LONDON —(INS)— RAF bombers which blasted Berlin Monday night scored hits on Adolf Hitler's personal headquarters and the Reich chancellery, dispatches reaching London from Stockholm reported today.

Disguised German Troops Still In Italy

LONDON — (U.P.) — German soldiers disguised as civilians remain in Rome despite Italian attempts to make it an open city for the purpose of aiding a Fascist plot to seize the government when Allied troops started an invasion, a Spanish traveler from Italy said today.

A Barcelona dispatch said Martinez Bugeda, who arrived from Rome by plane, reported that the disguised Nazi soldiers numbered in the thousands. It was not known if the plotters hoped to restore Benito Mussolini.

Coincidentally a Swiss dispatch quoted an interview with a neutral diplomat from Italy that the Fascist movement was being revivified while other political parties were ending their quarrels to unite against Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio because of his failure to end the war.

Mansfielders Carry Out Big Roles In Air, Sea Battles

July 1941. He was commissioned an ensign in July 1942 and in May was promoted to lieutenant. He has been overseas for the past six months.

Lieut. Gerhart, the AAF anti-submarine command in New York said, was credited with blasting one of at least 10 German U-boats sunk or damaged in 13 air-sea battles between patrol bombers ranging far off the Atlantic coast.

The announcement said Gerhart made a fortunate sighting as a U-boat was coming to the surface blasting the submersible out of control.

"The sub's bow rose 15 feet out of the water at a 45-degree angle and then slid down stern first to Davey Jones' locker," it added.

The anti-submarine command said five other submarines were believed to have been sunk and five damaged, and three were forced under water and thereby prevented from attacking nearby Allied shipping.

None of these battles has been reported previously, the anti-submarine command said.

B-24's specially equipped for anti-submarine warfare flew as far as 1,000 miles from their home bases to battle the submarines, the command said, and all returned safely, although five of them were subjected to severe anti-aircraft fire from the U-boats.

"Five crew members in one plane were wounded when an explosive shell smashed through the nose," the command's formal statement read. "The same shell shattered flight instruments, the hydraulic system and other vital parts of the aircraft, but the pilot managed a safe landing at his base."

The statement did not say how many planes were involved in the fights and gave no dates.

The announcement told of one battle in which one U-boat was surprised while fully surfaced. The sub crew elected to fight it out on the surface, and men on the sub deck hurriedly manned guns while others ran for the conning tower to escape the aircraft machine-gun fire that was sweeping the deck.

"Diving in to attack in a hail of shell-fire that ripped all sections of the plane," the announcement said. "First Lieutenant Walter S. McDonnell, pilot, of Duluth, Minn., dropped almost to water level before releasing depth charges on the U-boat.

"The attack was carried out despite injury to almost half of the plane crew and damaging of all instruments from an explosion of a U-boat shell in the nose of the aircraft.

"The wounded bombardier dropped his depth charges in a perfect straddle of the sub which was seen by the waist gunners to break in two in the middle near the conning tower. The rear section of the boat rose 10 to 12 feet out of the water, turned over and then settled with no forward motion.

"With four of his crew in need of immediate medical attention, the pilot set his course for his base. In addition to the bombardier, the navigator, the co-pilot and the assistant radio operator were wounded. . . . Although the wounds were serious, all of the crew are out of danger and on the road to recovery."

TRYS AGAIN

ODT Schedules New Meeting on Taxi Merger Plan.

The Office of Defense Transportation today had called a meeting of Mansfield taxi owners for Tuesday afternoon in a second move to work out a "merger plan" of operation so the city's taxis can be kept on the streets under gas and tire restrictions.

Two ODT representatives from the regional office in Canton will be here to outline a plan for taxi operators at a session at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the city building, said George Reichert, Service Taxi owner and chairman of the meeting.

Taxi owners failed to agree on a "merger" plan at a previous meeting, when they were told by the ODT that they would have to do something to reduce the number of unnecessary trips with empty or partly-filled cabs.

Nash in describing the arrival of the distinguished visitor said the occasion was unprecendented in the history of New Zealand. Speaking for his countrymen, Nash said that everyone was greatly pleased to have the president's wife with them.

Mrs. Roosevelt expressed pleasure at meeting Nash and the wife of the former representative in Washington and said it would be a great privilege for her to see the work New Zealand women are doing in the war effort.

She was confident, Mrs. Roosevelt said, that her visit would be as pleasurable as that to Britain last autumn when she returned the call made in Washington by the British monarch just before outbreak of the war.

"You may not know it," she said, "but already I feel at home."

Mrs. Roosevelt said there were a great many mothers and wives back in the United States who are grateful for the hospitality shown by the people of New Zealand to American doughboys based there.

"You have taken them into your homes and already we feel like old friends," said Mrs. Roosevelt.

In addition to visiting hospitals and military camps, Mrs. Roosevelt will survey the work of New Zealand Red Cross centers.

A special train awaited her in Auckland which had not been used since the start of the war in the Pacific to take her to Wellington, the capital. A special gathering of parliament will greet her arrival there.

HOPE DIMMED

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Hopes of the nation's motorists for more gasoline especially in the east, were dealt a double blow today.

Deputy Petroleum Administrator Ralph K. Davies declared the military drain on the supply produced east of the Rocky mountains was increasing steadily. His statement came after the petroleum administration for war (PAW) reported that the midwest, southwest and east are overdrawing their daily civilian allotment.

cil's earlier decision to postpone action on their request for pay increases until the end of the year, obtained the backing of labor organizations in the city and asked that council re-consider their request at a meeting which the employe representatives could attend.

Shultz said last week that the pay boost request would be reconsidered, and the meeting tentatively scheduled for next week will fulfill his promise to bring it before the committee again.

The pay increase movement was started by police and firemen who later were joined by other city workers. They asked for $35 a month pay boosts to meet rising living costs.

assist their government in prosecuting violators. Many just don't want to be bothered, yet often our only means of prosecution is to find a person willing to testify to the abuses."

In a cumulative report of the OPA's enforcement activities in the 14 OPA districts of this region, since the birth of this wartime agency, Gruener announced that 286 criminal cases have been filed; 456 injunction actions sought; and 583 suspension and revocation proceedings initiated.

The law provides that extreme willfulness must be shown before OPA may start criminal proceedings, Gruener said, and as a result the most flagrant violators are brought into criminal court and jailed or fined or both. He added that "the suspension and revocation actions have been effective against the less flagrant violators in hitting them where it hurts—in the pocketbook."

A large part of the work of the legal department is in getting merchants to comply with the regulations before it becomes necessary to institute court action.

Gruener said, "Our staff is continuously in conference with business men, acquainting them with their errors and straightening them out on the regulations. We have been doing a huge job of educating the business man."

PUTS NICKELS IN CELL LOCK

Prisoner Thinks Its Slot Machine, Misses Jackpot.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. —(U.P.)— Cecil Jones, arrested for drunkenness, mistook the big lock on the door of his cell for a slot machine and clogged it with nickels.

He deposited so many nickels in the lock the jailer could not open the door for Jones to appear in court. So the judge stood outside his cell and fined him $10.

The nickels in the lock totaled less than the fine, so he is serving his sentence while the jailer works on the lock with a file.

TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Marie M. Hehman Had Been Ill Several Weeks.

Mrs. Marie M. Hehman, 54, wife of Louis H. Hehman, manager of the Cleveland Grain company, died Thursday night at Mansfield General hospital. She had been ill for several months and was taken to the hospital early this week for treatment.

Mrs. Hehman lived in Mansfield her entire life. She was a member of the St. Peter's Catholic church, a charter member of St. Peter's Guild, and also a charter member of St. Rita's Sodality.

Surviving besides her husband are one daughter, Mrs. David T. Marantette of Grosse Pointe; one son, Paul of Detroit; three sisters, Mrs. Lawrence N. Host, Miss Edna Casey and Mrs. John C. Cotts, both of Detroit; two brothers, Raymond of Detroit and Emmett of Mansfield.

The body will remain at the Jones Memorial until 9:30 a. m. Monday when services will be held at St. Peter's Catholic church with Msgr. R. C. Goebel officiating. Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 27, 1943.

Latest adaptation of the language, fitted to indicate abrupt departure, is: "He did a Kiska."

Likelihood of Russia making a separate peace with Germany seems among the least of things to be worried about.

Deserving place in school copybooks, if penmanship were still being taught, would be General MacArthur's terse statement: "We do what we can with what we have."

Women's 'Rights' Already Equal

THIS WEEK marks the twenty-third anniversary of adoption of the Nineteenth amendment to the United States Constitution—the one which says: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

This is known as the "equal rights amendment," and while the idea was bitterly fought for many years before its adoption it has come into such general acceptance in recent years that its advisability is now unquestioned.

There is no such agreement, however, on another "equal rights amendment" now being proposed in congress for reference to the states for ratification.

This proposal reads: "Men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction. . . . Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

Anniversary of adoption of the women suffrage amendment is made the occasion for a statement by Miss Marguerite M. Wells, president of the National League of Women Voters, on this proposal, which she terms "unnecessary, inappropriate and a frivolous demand upon the attention of a congress concerned with the fate of this country and the world."

Contending that such an amendment would be "the greatest single step toward centralization of government control ever taken," Miss Wells points to variation of laws in different states and expresses belief that "real discriminations against women result from custom and prejudice—not from laws," and that a constitutional amendment would not change these attitudes but could aggravate them.

"Any gallantry male members of congress desire to show to women has no place in the Constitution of the United States," says Miss Wells. "Any recognition women wish to earn, they may now achieve through their equal rights as citizens of the United States, as provided in the 19th amendment to the Constitution."

During the 23 years since women attained political equality in the matter of voting "rights" their progress in attaining and demonstrating equal or superior ability in many fields of endeavor has been so obvious as to make mention unnecessary, but, as Miss Wells points out, if "equal" means "identical," the proposed amendment "fails to consider the differences between men and women."

In the event of further effort toward enactment of such an amendment as is being proposed, the views of Miss Wells on this subject, which may also be assumed to express opinions of the organization which she heads, will merit consideration.

Less Paper for Newspapers

EXTENT to which newspapers have already been cut down on their supplies of white paper on which they are printed (known to them as "newsprint"), serves to emphasize the woeful waste of scarce paper by government bureaus and to increase demands for more sensible handling of available paper stocks.

An instance in point is the recent absurdity of having a government booklet reprinted, at a cost of hundreds of dollars and a waste of a half-ton of newsprint, for no other reason than that the names of two departments were reversed in the credit lines.

In the processes of rationing, making income tax returns and other requirements of many vastly complicated industrial and business reports, there is fairly justifiable need for use of immense amounts of paper, but there is reason to believe that bureaucratic waste actually uses up more paper than is devoted to meeting real needs.

Meanwhile it is the newspapers, which are looked to for contribution of much of their space to willing support of all war activities, in addition to their regular functions of printing and distributing news and advertising, that are subjected to restrictions which make it impossible to meet all of their recognized obligations to the public they serve.

With a cut approximating 15 per cent in their newsprint requirements already in effect, and with a threat of a further 30 per cent reduction hanging over them, newspapers are resorting to various conservation measures to meet the situation—some by "freezing" their circulation at a figure which available newsprint stock permits, and others by eliminating some features, cutting down on news material, illustrations, and the like.

It will be the wish of all good newspapers to continue giving the most complete service possible, and to provide space for full presentation of material devoted to various phases of the war effort. There will be need, however, for sufficient newsprint to do this properly, for which reason it is urged that there be a more careful scrutiny of governmental waste of paper and a re-survey of paper production facilities, with a view to making the hardship on newspapers and their readers no greater than is actually necessary.

Brazil Preparing for Action

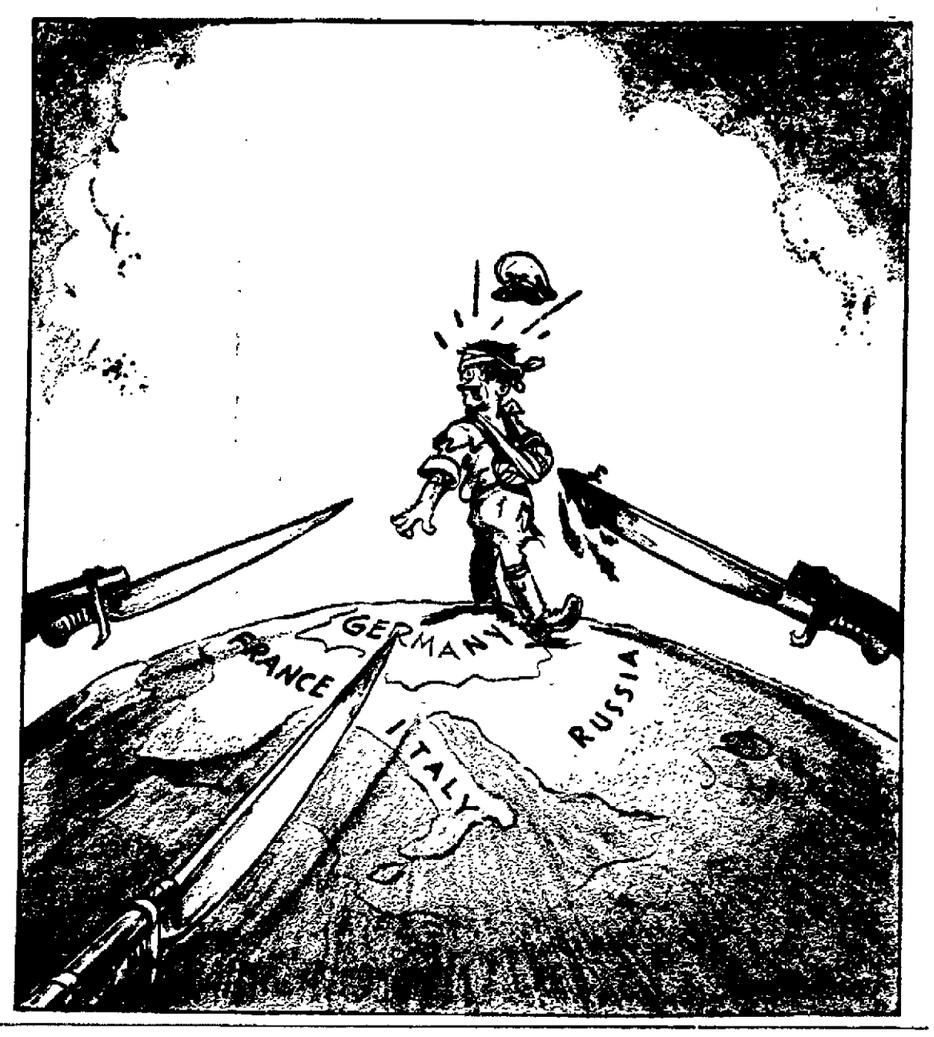
BRAZILIAN TROOPS will fight overseas. So says a spokesman of the Brazilian embassy at Lisbon. He estimated a few days ago that between now and the end of the war, five or six army divisions, about 120,000 men, will go abroad.

"It is most probable," he said, "that one division will sail before the end of October, and others will follow immediately. Motorized divisions are now being actively trained, with material supplied by the United States."

While Brazil declared war on Germany in the last war, her contribution lay chiefly in the seizure of German ships and the tying up of German funds. Now she proposes to go the whole route.

Though blood shed in a common cause is not an absolute guarantee of friendship after the war, the chances are that the present struggle will put the United States of America and the United States of Brazil on a friendlier basis after the war than ever before.

INVASION POINTS



Hitler's Fear of German People Shown by Elevation of Himmler

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

WE SHOULDN'T pass lightly by Hitler's appointment of Heinrich Himmler, the fuehrer's bloody-minded executioner, as German minister of interior, a position which carries with it pretty much the power of life and death over the people of the reich and occupied territories.

The elevation of Nazidom's chief murderer and terrorizer to this high position is one of the most significant signs of Hitler's growing weakness. The* all highest is showing fear, not only of the oppressed folk of conquered countries, but of his own people. Himmler is called in when tyranny and bloodshed are the order of the day.

It was Himmler the Hun who during Hitler's "blood purge" of his party in 1934 sat as judge of a drumhead court and sent a host of colleagues before firing squads. It was Himmler who wielded the lash and pistol when his master decreed the elimination of the Jews.

It was Himmler who drove thousands of helpless civilians to stand on the edge of their graves while they were coldly murdered by bullets through the back of the head.

On this throwback to savagery, the late Sir Neville Henderson, famous British ambassador to Berlin before the war, once said grimly:

"If given a gun and told to take two shots, I would first shoot Himmler, then Von Ribbentrop (German foreign minister) and brain Hitler with the butt of the rifle."

HITLER'S appointment of Himmler as minister of interior is really sensational, for the indications are it has these three purposes: (1) to employ a ruthless hand against the growing revolt among the conquered (?) peoples; (2) to maintain a tight hold on a home front which has been showing signs of unrest; (3) to force war workers to remain in danger zones and continue production, despite the terrific bombing which industrial centers are undergoing.

This doesn't justify a conclusion that the German people are on the verge of revolt. Morale is subject to quick changes, like your barometer. So let's just take the facts as they stand and log down among our important memoranda that German morale is not what it was, and that the boss gangster is worried.

Himmler's appointment comes on the heels of the catastrophic destruction of the great port of Hamburg, and the terrific bombardment of Berlin, which not only is the capital but is the most important single manufacturing center in Germany.

It coincides with Denmark's public anti-Nazi demonstrations which are reported to have resulted in half a dozen cities, including Copenhagen, being placed under a state of emergency. And other occupied countries are seething.

The bomb-shock being suffered by the people of the reich, and the urgent necessity of keeping every wheel of industry turning, must figure very largely in the change of heads for the interior department.

There's the colossal task not only of evacuating destroyed areas but of preventing panic and maintaining order. Equally difficult is likely to be the job of forcing workers to stick to their jobs when bombs are ripping factories out by the roots, and destroying the homes close to the plants.

It may be that a collapse of production may overtake Hitler even before the morale of his people cracks. German resources are disappearing in mountainous lots and we undoubtedly are seeing the effects on the Russian front.

To cite one example of the awful destructive power being cut loose against the reich, it is estimated that 30 per cent of the Nazi fighter plane production was destroyed when American bombers wiped out Regensburg Aug. 17.

The Tokyo radio says poor Emperor Hirohito is deeply concerned over Jap war production. His worries are joys compared with Hitler's troubles.

Dave Boone Says:

LAST SUNDAY marked the close of the season of the Holy Spirit and next Sunday ushers in Kingdomtide, the season of the Kingdom of God on earth. After this and beginning Nov. 29 comes the season of expectancy, with all the spiritual beauty of the Christmas season. If we could ever get mankind to think of these seasons with the same attention that he gives to spring, summer, autumn and winter there would be fewer wars.

* * *

The season of God on earth certainly should be given more attention by everybody and I wish the churches would put more emphasis on it. Why is it that you see campaigns and drives conducted for almost everything except the one paramount need of all mankind?

* * *

Prof. "Billy" Phelps of Yale has just passed on. There was a truly grand human being. He was a scholar, teacher of millions, real humorist, a civic leader, an author, a critic and a great companion. And he was, above all, a Godly man.

* * *

It was perhaps not generally known because he made no show of it, but Billy Phelps was a devout churchman all his life. Few men had read more books, and the Bible was his favorite.

* * *

Folks always spoke of Billy Phelps of Yale. But I like to speak of the Yale of Billy Phelps. He was one of its best assets for fifty years.

Blood Saves Lives.

Just for the record of what blood plasma has done to save the lives of fighting Americans we cite the case of Private Charles E. Oats on Guadalcanal.

Last January Private Oats was wounded by the burst of a Japanese shell. First aid, including a transfusion, was applied at a field dressing station. By the time the wounded soldier reached a hospital little hope was held for his recovery, but the administrations were continued until he had received seventeen quarts of plasma, more than any other one person on record. From a South Pacific base Private Oats is now reported ready for duty again.

It took the blood donations of many contributors to save the life of this single soldier, and each of those who have given anywhere may have the satisfaction of knowing that but for his small share this very soldier might have been sacrificed unnecessarily. — Cleveland News.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Hull Wins 'Showdown' Demand, Welles Quits State Department

WASHINGTON—Just as he did in the Wallace-Jones showdown, the president is ousting one of his most loyal supporters by accepting the resignation of Undersecretary of State Welles.

For exactly ten years Welles has been the president's chief adviser and administrator on the diplomatic front. He initiated Roosevelt's highly successful Good Neighbor policy, took the rap on a lot of things* he didn't initiate, and, like Henry Wallace, never made a move without knowing the president thoroughly approved.

But like Wallace, Welles is now being ousted. As with Wallace also, Welles' case involves a showdown with the conservative, or southern wing, of the Democratic party. Where the president picked between Jesse Jones and Wallace in regard to Economic Warfare, he has now chosen between Cordell Hull and Sumner Welles.

Hull Demanded Showdown.

INSIDE STORY is that Secretary Hull, spurred on by Mrs. Hull, called for a showdown with the president, declaring that either his undersecretary of state must resign or he, Hull, would get out.

The president has known Welles since the latter was a boy in knee breeches. Welles and Mrs. Roosevelt had the same godmother. Welles was a pageboy at the Roosevelt wedding. Later, when Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy, he got Welles his first appointment to the diplomatic service. Welles had virtually grown up under Roosevelt's tutelage.

Faced with the Hull ultimatum, however, the president went on his Great Lakes cruise, with Jimmy Byrnes and Harry Hopkins, to think it over. When he got back he cast his choice with the conservative wing of the party. He accepted Welles' resignation.

To get the full significance of this decision, it is necessary to go back and understand the relationship between Welles and Hull.

Actually, no two men appeared to be more ideally suited for diplomatic teamwork. Hull, now over seventy, not in good health, away from the state department six months last year, needed a young, vigorous undersecretary. He has always stated that he was not an administrator, did not want to be tied down with details, wanted to devote his time to trade treaties and major policy.

Mrs. Hull's Role.

BUT the two men got pulled apart, partly by the president himself, partly by Mrs. Hull, partly by the sycophantic career diplomats who played up to Hull's pride and poured poison against Welles.

The president, a very busy man, found it difficult to listen to Secretary Hull's rambling, indecisive diplomatic presentations; so got in the habit of calling Welles to the White House. Welles could summarize a situation in France, Germany or the Argentine in five minutes and recommend action. So Welles and the president, always his own secretary of state, grew closer and closer in handling foreign policy.

This was one of the things which especially griped Mrs. Hull. And had it not been for the resentment which she and the career clique poured into the old gentleman's gullible ears, it is doubtful if the state department feud would have developed.

One series of incidents which particularly rankled was over the Good Neighbor policy. Welles had been in the state department under Charles Evans Hughes, and Welles really developed the first seeds of the Good Neighbor policy. For it was Welles who engineered the withdrawal of American marines from the Dominican Republic and Nicaragua, and who first laid down the policy that American troops should not land on Latin American soil.

Good Neighbor Welles.

LATER while Roosevelt was still governor of New York, Welles sold him on the Good Neighbor policy and helped write the Democratic platform adopted at the Chicago convention.

It was Secretary Hull, however, who attended the first Pan American conference in 1933 at Montevideo to carry out the Good Neighbor planks, at which time he argued privately that the United States must reserve the right to land troops on Latin American soil if necessary.

Hull even approached the Chilean and Argentine delegates and thought he had their support for the American position of intervention. But when they surprised him by speaking publicly against intervention, he finally came round to the original Welles policy of no U. S. troops in Latin America.

Since then, Latin American diplomats usually have come to see Welles, not Hull, when they wanted to get things done—another fact which has disrupted relations.

More acid was poured in the wound during the state department row over European refugees. The president appointed a committee of distinguished citizens including the Catholic archbishop of New Orleans to select German, Czech and Austrian refugees, many of them Jewish, for admission to this country.

Refugees Blocked.

THE committee was set up under the supervision of Sumner Welles, and it selected 651 professors, churchmen, and ex-government officials to get U. S. passport visas. Months passed and nothing happened. Finally it was discovered that the clique in the state department which takes orders from Hull had blocked the visas.

Meanwhile Mr. Hull had authorized the admission of 500 Bata shoe workers from German-occupied Czechoslovakia despite the fact that the Bata firm was on the British blacklist. (Later the firm was placed on the American blacklist and the shoe workers who had already entered the country were expelled.)

This and many another problem where Welles was doing a job at the personal direction of the president, and usually batting for a more liberal policy, have snarled state department relations intermittently for years.

So now, in the same way that Hull demanded the resignation of Raymond Moley as assistant secretary of state, and of George Peek as economic adviser, he had now demanded the exit of the most important and liberal pillar in the state department—Sumner Welles.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

A Quiet Evening, a Bottle of Champagne, And a Talk About "Old Times" In Africa.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—Yesterday I wrote about going down to see some old friends decorated for bravery. After it was over we went back to the tent where one of them lives and sat there talking about old times and how good it was to get together again.

One officer had a bottle of champagne he had been saving for some occasion and since this seemed to be at least a good imitation of an occasion he got it out and we passed it around, the half dozen of us* drinking it warm and out of the bottle. My palate has never been educated up to champagne and I'd just as soon have had a good swig of Bevo, but after all an event is an event and you can't let your old friends down.

We sat out under the trees and a chill wind came up and somebody brought me a jacket to slip on. It had lieutenant colonel's leaves on the shoulders and I suppose I could have been arrested for impersonating an officer, but I was in a nice position, having the head military policeman of the area sitting next to me, so I just flaunted my colonel's leaves and hoped some stranger would come by to salute me.

Our host was Lieut. Col. Harry Goslee, of Columbus, O. He calls himself a professional reserve officer as he has been on active duty for 10 years now. He was with us back in the first days at Oran, then got shunted off to another job and missed the fighting in Tunisia. But this summer he got switched back onto the main track again and lately he's been making hay fast while the bombs fall.

Back home he has a wife and daughter of 15 who keeps writing him, the precious child, asking if he's seen me. He also has a Dalmatian dog named Colonel who volunteered—or was volunteered—four months ago in the Dogs for Defense Army and now is serving somewhere in Virginia. Colonel Goslee's home flies two service stars in the front window—one for the man and one for the dog.

DUSK came on and we moved inside the tent so we could light our cigarettes. Our conversation drifted back to other days—Oran of last November and bitter cold Tebessa in January and the sadness of our retreat from Sbeitla and the chill sweeping winds of Gafsa and later in the spring the beauties of Beja and of the final wonderful feeling of victory at Ferryville.

And we talked of how tired we had all gradually grown and nobody seemed like heroes who'd just been decorated for bravery. We talked of the miles we've covered and the moves we've made in the last nine months, of countries we've seen and how the whole war machine, though it grows dirtier and tireder month after month, also grows mature and smooth and more capable.

In this long time all of us over here have met thousands of different soldiers and officers. Yet those of us who became friends right at the very beginning in Africa or even back in England seem to have a bond between us as though we were members of a fraternity or a little family and when you get back with each other again it's comfortable and old shoelike.

We talked of people no longer with us—such people as Lieut. Gen. Lloyd Fredendall and Maj. Ed Adkins, both on duty back in Memphis now. Ed, in his job as headquarters' commandant, used to be a focal point of this little sitting around group in Tunisia, just as Colonel Goslee is in the same job here in Sicily.

Ed Adkins was a favorite and his name came up frequently in our conversation. He was crazy to get back to the states and we know he's happy there and yet we laughed and prophesied that when he reads these lines in a Memphis paper — reads how we were still going on and on, still moving every few days, still listening now and then for the uneven groan of the German night bombers, still fighting dust, darkness, weariness and once in a while sitting around after supper on cots of a blacked out tent talking like this—when he reads about it, and visualizes us, he's going to be so homesick for the front that he'll probably cry.

They tell me all the soldiers who have been through the mill and have returned to America are like that. They get an itch for the old miserable life—a disgusting, illogical yearning to be back again in the place they hated. I'm sure it's true but I know a lot of soldiers who would like a chance to put that theory to the test.

WELL, if the suggestion is in order . . . how about Joe Davies leaping off on another mission to Moscow?

There is something cooking and from here we can't tell whether it's good or bad.

But Mr. Davies should know.

He got a book and movie out of his first trip, a few more notes out of his second and a third trip ought to be as productive as all get out.

* * *

That sounds all right from here.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Human Nature

THE YOUNG MAN sat in a wheelchair at the edge of the terrace and I saw that he had been reading. A book entitled "One World" was on the low table beside him, and new magazines. His bright eyes shone as I greeted him and his broad lips parted in a winning smile.

"Yes, I have lots of time to read," he told me. "A friend gave me a membership in a book club, so I get everything first hand."

"You have a wonderful view here," I suggested.

"Yes, I can see all over town. Can see the trains come in and leave over three railroads; can see the airplanes swoop down to land. Oh, I don't get lonely like a person might think I would—but then of course—"

"What would you like most, if you could have a wish?"

"Why of course—to walk!"

I MET, in her home, a cultured young lady in her twenties, who was blind. She sat in a comfortable chair with a large book of Braille across her lap. She smiled, too, as her mother greeted me, and when I looked on her in pity, silently, she understood and said, "No, I'm getting along fine. I'm sure I get so much more out of life than those who rush and worry. I can sit and calmly enjoy the best of literature and music. I don't know what darkness looks like. Only I know when evening comes by the mother quail's call in a nearby field, and the sleepy notes of the songbirds. I have to guess about the beauty of a sunrise, but I love the sound of the rain upon the leaves, and the smell and the feel of it.

"Those are things outside myself. I believe I know, too, as completely as anyone, my mother's love to me; my father's joy and pride in my being all I can, even though I am blind."

"You do seem very happy and satisfied," I told her. "But if you could choose one favor that you would most desire—what would you choose?"

"Most of all I'd want to see."

* * *

A WELL DRESSED man in a new and costly car drove into our drive and stopped. As we talked he watched our two oldest boys tumbling about the lawn with their football.

"There's the life!" he said. "I'd give all I own if I could be a simple kid again for a while. What with stomach ulcers, asthma and hay fever, I don't even enjoy the food I eat."

As he drove lightly up the road, the two boys ran up to me. "Dad who was that man? What a swell car! Gee, if we had a car like that—and as much money as he has, wouldn't we go places!"

HOUSEWIVES LEARN HOW TO BAKE BREAD

Mrs. Julia Kiene Demonstrates Methods at Health For Victory Club Meet Held at Westinghouse Auditorium Thursday Afternoon.

THE aroma of fresh, homemade soya bread filled the auditorium at the Westinghouse plant yesterday afternoon as Health for Victory club members turned their attention to two groups of food that are important sources of the energy needed for wartime jobs.

As she lifted golden-brown loaves from an oven, Mrs. Julia Kiene, director of the Westinghouse Home Economics Institute, demonstrated that grandma was not the only one who could turn out delicious home-baked bread.

"All of us can learn to make bread, not just as good but better than our mothers and grandmothers made," Mrs. Kiene said. "In the first place, flour today is more uniform in quality than in years past and we have the new soya flour that grandma never even heard about in her day; our ovens are better than the old-fashioned ones, and our yeast is ready-prepared."

During the meeting the home economist demonstrated, step by step, how to bake bread; how to use cereals to make a little meat go a long way; and how to use cereals as part of the main dish and as a dessert to add variety to the meat and vegetable portion of a meal, without lavish use of butter. In addition, she distributed to every Health for Victory club member a meal planning guide that contains recipes and menus for every meal in the month, hints that will help homemakers to meet food shortages and rationing, detailed instructions on how to make healthful, homemade soya bread, and other helpful information.

Mrs. Kiene said women who become somewhat panic-stricken at the thought of baking bread should know that it is easier to mix up a batch of bread than a cake. The only difference, she said, is that bread baking takes more time. Between 2½ and three hours are required for the bread to be ready for the pan, one to 1½ hours before it is ready for the oven, and one additional hour to bake—altogether from 5 to 5½ hours.

To guard against the possibility of having bread get stale or mildewed before it is used up, the home economist suggested that women with small families would be wise to cut the recipe in two so they would not have an excess amount on hand. To keep bread fresh-tasting, she recommended wrapping it in waxed paper after it has cooled, and then storing the bread in a refrigerator.

"The bread can be kept moist and free from mildew for several days if this method is followed. Then it can be refreshed by sprinkling it with water, placing it in a paper sack and putting in the oven for about five minutes."

Winners of prizes at the meeting were Mrs. D. Schneller, Mrs. Nick Freisch, Mrs. T. L. Kenny, Mrs. R. F. Fair, Mrs. Thomas E. Schacher, Mrs. Donald Curl, Mrs. John Folk, Mrs. Helen S. Sterkel, Mrs. John H. Melching, Mrs. C. R. Warn, Mrs. E. G. Pankow, Mrs. Lyman Moore, Mrs. Lawrence Smith, Mrs. Carey Norris, Mrs. Joseph Bradley, Mrs. E. A. Shower Fetes Mrs. Miller, Jr., At Rebel Home

Mrs. Fred Miller, jr., the former Olga Luich, was a guest of honor last evening at the home of Mrs. Peter Rebel, 290 Newman street, when Mrs. Rebel and Mrs. Joseph Morganstern entertained 16 close friends and relatives of the recent bride.

Guests made a bride's book for the honoree during the evening. Mrs. Miller was presented with a shower of miscellaneous gifts.

Luncheon was served from a long table, about which the guests were seated. Centering the table were glass swans in which floated tiny flowers. They were placed on a round mirror. White tapers in crystal candelabra were placed at either end.

Place cards for guests were miniature bridesmaids. The honoree's place card was a small bride. Appointments were in pastel shades of yellow, blue and green. The hostesses presided at the table.

At the beginning of the evening, Mrs. Miller was given a gardenia corsage for her hair.

Quality Should Be Included In Good Looks

By MME QUI VIVE

"She's a lady of quality." Grandma used to hear that expression in her youth. It meant a lot. If you had "quality," you were a gentlewoman. You were everything that was pleasing; you had distinction. Quality is something that is recognized by the humblest person and the stupidest. It is a power greater than beauty. It is style, manner, spiritual charm

The woman who has the speech and manners of a lady is blessed, has herself to thank for her blessing. Environment, of course, is a factor, though we all know rude individuals who have parents that are gracious.

The lady of quality has poise, self-control. She doesn't get into arguments with the butcher, the baker or the woman next door. She is able to avoid unpleasant contacts. She uses her head for the purpose for which it was intended, to make her life and the lives of those about her as tranquil as possible.

In a gingham frock—price $3.95—she is more attractive than the ill-mannered little rowdy who wears a custom made dress that cost up into the hundreds. She walks down the boulevard in the three year old tailor-made, and receives more admiring glances than the girl who carries too much war paint and sports the latest sartorial whoopee.

At the sight of her, you say to yourself "she's interesting I'd like to know her." She is thoughtful, considerate, friendly. No snob. Snobbishness is cheap stuff. Nothing cheap about her. She has "quality."

The seeker after popularity is entitled to cultivate self adornment, but that isn't the whole job. She should also make herself adorable.

She musn't think only of "things"—frocks, hats, the latest coiffure, the newest lipstick. It's grand to wear beautiful dry goods on your back, but it is nicer to have a personality that is appealing. Fine feathers don't mean anything, if a girl doesn't know how to make herself charming.

If a girl sincerely desires to acquire the manners of gentle folk, she'll surprise herself at the progress she will make. If she has an open mind, cultivates the power of observation, notes what it is that makes other women personality successes she can become vibrant and interesting

The quick word must be repressed. No criticisms It is infinitely better to run away than to fight through an argument. Getting into even the slightest squabble leaves one feeling low and cheap Very few things are worth a quarrel. Life is smooth for the woman who keeps her opinions to herself. She has "quality"

Mrs. John Jones Entertains For Ontario Circle

The regular meeting of Circle 6 of the Ontario Community church was held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. John M. Jones in Ontario. Assisting Mrs. Jones was Mrs. William Gage.

Following a short business session, the evening was spent playing games and contests. Prizes were won by Mrs. Sherman Au and Mrs. Fury.

Luncheon was served buffet style from a long table centered with two arrangements of varicolored sweet peas. Baskets of gladioli, marigolds and mixed flowers decorated the home.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Hellinger, Sept. 3.

New Styles Come From Mexico City

NEW YORK—Mexico, with its quiet charm and colorful land, is growing nearer and dearer to Americans; and much that we understand of this enchanting country has been brought back to us by writers and fashion leaders interested in the evolution of dress.

Just a year ago, Vyvyan Donner, well-known commentator and director of Movietone Fashions, went to Mexico with a trunk load of American clothes. Miss Donner, with a half dozen Movietone girls and the permission of the Mexican government photographed these clothes side by side with colorful Mexican dress in some of the most delightful spots imaginable.

Now that the pictures are being shown—there are only two copies of the color reels in this country—it can be said that our fashions can go anywhere in Mexico and fit the mood and background of the country.

One of the spots where Miss Donner took her girls was the seaside resort of Acapulco. Here the models wore sun suits, slacks and bathing suits of celanese rayon jerseys, moire taffetas, sharkskin and Beachanese. Some were all white, others printed in green, sea blue and red flowers. One bathing suit was a black moire with a narrow white fringe trimming across the top which made it look very Mexican, although it was made right here in New York.

If you can picture these girls watching the divers from the rugged cliffs, or strolling through the wooded gardens of shady elms and bougainvillea to the sun patios of the El Mirador hotel, you will have an idea of the kind of clothes to take with you if you are lucky enough to visit Mexico Of course, in addition to play clothes you will wear your summer sports dresses and your dirndl skirts and sheer peasant blouses at Acapulco, Cuernavaca or Taxco, for the climate is warm and sunny.

It may be surprising to know that during these summer months, the visitor to Mexico should also take along warm suits, a wool dress and perhaps a fur scarf to wear in Mexico City. Such clothes are needed in many of the high altitude spots. A typical example of this was shown in Vyvyan Donner's Movietone of the roof patio on top of the Chapultepec Museum. This was once the residence of the Emperor Maximillian and Empress Carlotta.

Michael Falon, the titian haired Movietone girl who modeled the fiesta costume of white lace, with its starched veil worn off the face and down the back, would have done justice to Carlotta herself, in a balustrade scene silhouetted against blue skies and tropical plants.

Sports clothes, in casual shirtwaist styles as we wear them in New York for daytime, are seldom seen on smart women in Mexico City, said Miss Donner. Dresses of the afternoon type, prints, black crepes, suits, dress hats, lace, gloves, etc., in the manner of the informal restaurant dress, is considered the appropriate apparel, and the climate is cool during the present season, requiring a coat or fur piece at night.

The influence of Mexico on style is making rapid progress in the United States, and much of it is incorporated in fall clothes. Jewelry, too, is typical Next month the stores will be showing a collection of Mexican sterling silver, in tailored and modern designs, differing from the Indian type to which we are accustomed. In silver satin finish, there are earrings, pins, necklaces and bracelets of beautiful design.

RE-DYE FADED CURTAINS

Sunshine means Vitamin D for human beings. For curtains it means fading. You can put new life into your curtains be re-dyeing them at home. You can choose from an array of 50 home-dye colors, too. Special dyes have been created for the two most popular shades—ecru and peach. The cost is trifling since a single package will tintex from 10 to 16 curtains.

'FOREIGN POLICY' TOPIC LEAGUE-CHURCH MEET

Second In Series of Conferences Held Thursday at First Presbyterian Church in Charge of League Head, Mrs. D. O. Meese.

THE second in the series of conferences between members of the Richland county League of Women Voters and representatives of the various church denominations was held Thursday at the First Presbyterian church in charge of the League president, Mrs. D. O. Meese. "Foreign Policy" was the principal topic of discussion in the post-war planning session.

Assisting Mrs. Meese with the conference was Mrs. A. M. Colby. Discussion was also held on the Congressional record of the Ball-Burton-Hill-Hatch resolution for post-war planning which was introduced last March in the senate.

The program for these meetings is according to the outline prepared by the national league. Looking at the record the league says the early policy was "Security against aggression and promotion of the national well-being were the earliest aims of our foreign policy. Means of carrying it out varied according to the immediate situations which had to be met."

The recent policy statement—"During the last 20 years we have had no positive foreign policy.

"We have followed a negative 'keep out of war' and 'mind your own business' attitude which neither guaranteed our security nor promoted our national interests. We passed neutrality laws giving up our rights as a neutral and accepted partial disarmament without taking other positive measures to increase our security."

The league says a new statement of foreign policy is needed. "Before we can decide on the best methods of carrying out our foreign policy, we must decide what we want to accomplish. Any foreign policy should be designed to obtain security against aggression and to promote the national well-being."

Next meeting of the groups will be Sept. 9 at the Presbyterian church. These sessions are open to any women interested in the post-war planning, regardless of denomination.

Second Career For Former Broadway Star

By CLAYTON IRWIN
(AP Features Writer)

NEW YORK—In a stuffy, hat-box-size dressing room backstage at a Broadway theater, Ann Pennington dropped a little wearily to a wooden bench. On the stage, a men's chorus shouted the lively melody of the drinking song from "The Student Prince."

At 50, "the girl with the million-dollar legs" is back on Broadway. It is the first time since 1934, when she starred in the musical show "Everybody's Welcome." In the current production of the Sigmund Romberg operetta she is the gay, scatterbrained scullery maid with a few lines to speak, a few lines to sing, a few dance steps to perform.

"I know it's a step in the right direction," she says. "It's the beginning of my second career in the theater. I couldn't have asked for more success as a dancer. It was wonderful, but it's history.
